CUYAHOGA COUNTY

Estate of Deckman v. Joseph

2026-Ohio-1968 (8th Dist. 2026) · No. 115371 · Decided May 28, 2026

SUMMARY

The Ohio Eighth District Court of Appeals reviewed the dismissal of claims arising from alleged misuse of powers of attorney to change life-insurance beneficiaries and alter estate planning. The court held that prior dismissals for lack of standing, failure to join necessary parties, and lack of subject-matter jurisdiction were not adjudications on the merits for res judicata purposes. It affirmed dismissal of the constructive-trust and accounting counts as independent causes of action, but held that those remedies could remain available for surviving claims, including undue influence and breach of fiduciary duty, and remanded the case.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	Court of Appeals of Ohio, Eighth Appellate District, Cuyahoga County
WRITING FOR THE COURT	Deena R. Calabrese, J.; Michelle J. Sheehan, A.J.; Anita Laster Mays, J.
JURISDICTION	Court of Appeals of Ohio, Eighth Appellate District, Cuyahoga County
DECIDED	May 28, 2026
DOCKET	115371
DISPOSITION	reversed_and_remanded
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Plaintiffs appealed from the Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas' order granting defendants' motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss all claims.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Summary-judgment rulings and Civ.R. 12(B)(6) dismissals are reviewed de novo. On summary judgment, the court determines independently whether there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. On a motion to dismiss, factual allegations are presumed true and reasonable inferences are drawn in favor of the nonmoving party.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the trial court erred in granting summary judgment on the ground that the claims were barred by res judicata.
2. Whether dismissal was proper because the prior probate appeal was pending.
3. Whether the trial court properly dismissed the undue-influence claim for failure to state a claim.
4. Whether constructive trust and accounting claims were properly dismissed as independent causes of action.
5. Whether the trial court was required to provide detailed reasoning in an opinion granting summary judgment.

HOLDINGS

1. The prior probate and federal dismissals were not final judgments on the merits because they were based on lack of standing, failure to join necessary parties, and lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. Accordingly, those dismissals did not bar the current action under res judicata, and summary judgment was improper on that basis.
2. The argument that the current action should be dismissed because Deckman I was still pending was moot because this court had resolved Deckman I and had not remanded it to the probate court.
3. The trial court erred in dismissing the undue-influence claim. The defendants' asserted basis for dismissal—that monetary damages were not an available remedy—did not warrant dismissal because the complaint also sought equitable relief through a constructive trust, and defendants did not establish that plaintiffs could prove no set of facts entitling them to relief.
4. The trial court properly dismissed the constructive-trust and accounting counts as independent causes of action, but those remedies remain available for claims that remain pending.
5. A trial court need not set forth detailed reasoning in an opinion granting summary judgment; therefore, the second assignment of error was overruled.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“We find that summary judgment of appellants’ claims in this case was not proper because the dismissals in both the probate court and the federal court cases were not final judgments on the merits and thus were not barred by res judicata.”

“Therefore, the trial court erred when it granted appellees’ motion to dismiss Count 5, undue influence, of appellants’ complaint.”

“However, an accounting and the imposition of a constructive trust are still appropriate remedies for claims that remain pending.”

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

William J. Deckman and Allison Marie Deckman divorced, and Deckman agreed to maintain a $500,000 life-insurance policy until his child-support obligation ended. After Deckman suffered a stroke and entered nursing care, his nieces Kim Joseph and Michelle Silverstein assumed responsibility for his care under financial and health-care powers of attorney. They changed the policy beneficiary from Allison to Kim and later Kim received the death benefit and paid half to Michelle. The plaintiffs alleged that the nieces abused their powers of attorney and improperly altered Deckman's estate planning and beneficiary designations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

A prior probate-court action was dismissed for lack of standing and failure to join necessary parties, and the federal action was dismissed for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. Plaintiffs then filed this action in the Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas alleging declaratory, fraud, power-of-attorney, undue-influence, breach-of-fiduciary-duty, constructive-trust, and accounting claims. The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss all claims. The appellate court affirmed in part, reversed in part, and remanded, leaving Counts 4, 5, and 6 pending.

DISPOSITION

reversed_and_remanded

REMAND INSTRUCTIONS

Proceed consistent with the opinion. Counts 4, 5, and 6 remain pending. The appellate court issued a special mandate and taxed appellate costs to appellees.

Civil Appeal from the Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas Case No. CV-24-109473

Appearances: Michael P. Harvey Co., L.P.A., and Michael P. Harvey, for appellants. McDonald Hopkins, LLC, David Dreschsler, Franklin C. Malemud, and Alex Tominc, for appellees. DEENA R. CALABRESE, J.: Plaintiffs-appellants Estate of William J. Deckman, Alec Reed Deckman (“Alec”), Matthew Cole Deckman (“Matthew”), Allison Marie Deckman (“Allison”), Susan C. Fine, and Brian E. McGrath (collectively “appellants”) appeal the order of the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court (“trial court”) granting defendants- appellees Kim Joseph (“Kim”) and Michelle Silverstein’s (“Michelle”) (collectively “appellees”) motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss. For the reasons that follow, we affirm in part, reverse in part, and remand.

Relevant Facts and Procedural History This is the third case and second appeal to this court stemming from the management and distribution of the life insurance policy proceeds from the estate of William Deckman (“decendent”). Appellants Alec and Matthew are decendent’s sons, Allison is decendent’s ex-wife and mother of Alec and Matthew, and appellees Kim and Michelle are decendent’s nieces. Appellants assert that appellees abused a power of attorney granted to them to manage decendent’s affairs to change the beneficiaries to his life insurance policy from appellant Allison to appellee Kim and to make other changes to his estate planning prior to his death. Prior to decendent’s decline in health, he and Allison divorced in Hamilton County, Tennessee. Their divorce was finalized in 2016, and they entered into a permanent parenting plan in 2019. As part of the parenting plan, decendent agreed to maintain a $500,000 life insurance policy until his child-support payment obligation was complete on June 12, 2021. On February 14, 2019, decendent suffered from a stroke and was admitted to the hospital. After he was released from the hospital, decendent was transferred to a stroke-rehabilitation facility, then a nursing-care facility. Decendent resided in various skilled-nursing-care facilities until he passed away. On March 13, 2019, Kim and Michelle assumed responsibility for decendent’s care through financial and health care powers of attorney. In April 2019, Kim and Michelle changed the beneficiary on the life insurance policy from Allison to Kim. On June 12, 2021, decedent's child-support obligation to Allison for the benefit of the children was completed.¹ On June 27, 2022, decedent passed away. Kim received the life insurance death benefit after decedent passed away and paid half to Michelle. Multiple lawsuits have followed. On March 13, 2023, Alec filed the first case with the Cuyahoga County Probate Court ("probate court") against appellees. The original complaint requested an accounting. On September 5, 2023, a first amended complaint was filed requesting an accounting, alleging claims of undue influence and breach of fiduciary duty, sought a declaratory judgment that Alec was the lawful beneficiary of the insurance policy, and requested the imposition of a constructive trust over the policy proceeds. On April 18, 2024, the probate court granted appellees' motion for dismissal of the undue-influence, breach-of-fiduciary-duty, and declaratory-judgment claims. Alec filed an appeal of the probate court case with this court ("Deckman I"). On July 3, 2025, this court affirmed the probate court's dismissal for lack of standing of Alec's undue-influence and breach-of-fiduciary-duty claims¹ Matthew turned 18 on January 9, 2019, and Alec turned 18 on June 12, 2021. and the dismissal of the declaratory-judgment action for lack of standing and for failure to name necessary parties. See Deckman v. Joseph, 2025-Ohio-2360 (8th Dist.). Additionally, this court noted that because Alec's claims were dismissed, there was no basis for the requested remedies of an accounting and the imposition of a constructive trust. Id. On August 25, 2024, appellants filed a complaint ("federal case") in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio.² On December 16, 2024, the federal court dismissed the federal case for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. On December 30, 2024, the current case was filed with the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court, General Division. The named plaintiffs are the Estate of William J. Deckman, c/o Michael Harvey, Esq., Administrator; Alec Reed Deckman; Matthew Cole Deckman; Allison Marie Deckman; Susan C. Fine; and Brian E. McGrath. The named defendants are Kim Joseph and Michelle Silverstein. The complaint alleges the following claims, in summary:

1. Declaratory judgment pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a) that the beneficiary designations after February 2019 were invalid;
2. Declaratory judgment pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a) that any inter vivos transfers of Decedent's assets to appellees or their family members after February 2019 are invalid;
3. Fraud, fraudulent concealment, constructive fraud pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3729; 2 Federal Case No. 1:24-CV-1398.
4. Fraudulent conduct under powers of attorney and for other relief pursuant to Ohio Revised Code §§ 1337.34 and 1337.36;
5. Undue influence;
6. Breach of fiduciary duty;
7. Constructive trust;
8. Accounting.

On February 28, 2025, appellees filed a motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss. The motion made several arguments. First, the motion moved for summary judgment pursuant to Civ.R. 56 and asserted that all claims were barred by the principles of res judicata. Second, the motion moved for dismissal of all claims, asserting that dismissal was proper because Deckman I was a pending case on appeal with this court. Lastly, appellees moved for dismissal of the declaratory-judgment and Federal False Claim Act claims, Counts 1, 2, and 3, for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction and dismissal of Counts 5 and 7 for undue influence and constructive trust for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. On July 3, 2025, the trial court granted appellees' motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss, stating, in relevant part, as follows: This cause came before the court upon the defendants' motion for summary judgment and motion to dismiss, filed 02/28/2025, the plaintiffs' brief in opposition, filed 05/27/2025, and the defendants' reply in support, filed 06/03/2025. The court finds the defendants' motion well taken and dismisses all claims. This appeal followed. Appellants raise the following assignments of error for review:

1. The Trial Court erred as a matter of law by dismissing the Case on Summary Judgment when there are genuine issues of material fact in dispute.

2. The Trial Court erred as a matter of law when it did not provide an Opinion as to why it determined the Case on Summary Judgment. Law and Analysis In their first assignment of error appellants assert that the trial court erred when it dismissed their claims on summary judgment when there are genuine issues of material fact in dispute. Appellants' brief also asserts that the trial court erred when it granted appellees' motion to dismiss. The trial court's order states, "The court finds the defendants' motion well taken and dismisses all claims." (Emphasis added.) We address both the motion for summary judgment and the motion to dismiss because it is unclear which motion the trial court granted. Summary Judgment We first address the trial court's order granting appellees' motion for summary judgment. Civ.R. 56(C) provides in pertinent part: Summary judgment shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, written admissions, affidavits, transcripts of evidence, and written stipulations of fact, if any, timely filed in the action, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Ohio appellate courts "review summary judgment rulings de novo, applying the same standard as the trial court." Montgomery v. ExchangeBase, LLC, 2024-Ohio-2585, ¶ 47 (8th Dist.), citing Grafton v. Ohio Edison Co., 77 Ohio St.3d 102, 105 (1996). We therefore "accord no deference to the trial court's decision and conduct an independent review of the record to determine whether summary judgment is appropriate." Montgomery at ¶ 47. As this court explained in Montgomery: Under Civ.R. 56, summary judgment is appropriate when no genuine issue exists as to any material fact and, viewing the evidence most strongly in favor of the nonmoving party, reasonable minds can reach only one conclusion that is adverse to the nonmoving party, entitling the moving party to judgment as a matter of law. Grafton v. Ohio Edison Co., 77 Ohio St. 3d 102, 105 (1996). On a motion for summary judgment, the moving party carries an initial burden of identifying specific facts in the record that demonstrate his or her entitlement to summary judgment. Dresher v. Burt, 75 Ohio St.3d 280, 292-293

(1996). If the moving party fails to meet this burden, summary judgment is not appropriate; if the moving party meets this burden, the nonmoving party has the reciprocal burden to point to evidence of specific facts in the record demonstrating the existence of a genuine issue of material fact for trial. Id. at 293. Summary judgment is appropriate if the nonmoving party fails to meet this burden. Id. at ¶ 48. “A fact is material if it ‘might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law’ of the case.” Oko v. Cleveland Div. of Police, 2021-Ohio-2931, ¶ 23 (8th Dist.), quoting Turner v. Turner, 67 Ohio St.3d 337, 340 (1993), citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986). See also Montgomery at ¶ 49. In addition, “[o]nly genuine issues of material fact preclude summary judgment. A factual dispute is ‘genuine’ only if ‘it allows reasonable minds to return a verdict for the nonmoving party.’” (Emphasis in original.) Huntington Natl. Bank v. Blount, 2013-Ohio-3128, ¶ 32 (8th Dist.), quoting Sysco Food Servs. v. Titan Dev., 1995 Ohio App. LEXIS 4762, *7 (9th Dist. Oct. 25, 1995), citing Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317 (1986), and Anderson. See also Montgomery at ¶ 49. Appellees’ motion for summary judgment with the lower court asserted appellants claims were barred by res judicata. According to the doctrine of res judicata, “‘a valid, final judgment rendered upon the merits bars all subsequent actions based upon any claim arising out of the same transaction or occurrence that was the subject matter of a previous action.’” Beavers v. PNC Bank, Natl. Assn., 2013-Ohio-5318, ¶ 14 (8th Dist.), quoting Grava v. Parkman Twp., 73 Ohio St.3d 379, 382 (1995). “For purposes of res judicata analysis, a ‘transaction’ is defined as a ‘common nucleus of operative facts.’” Beavers at ¶ 14, quoting Grava at 382, quoting 1 Restatement of the Law 2d, Judgments, § 24, (1982). As this court has held: Res judicata bars a claim when the following four elements are met: (1) there is a final, valid decision on the merits by a court of competent jurisdiction; (2) the second action involves the same parties or their privies as the first; (3) the second action raises claims that were or could have been litigated in the first action; and (4) the second action arises out of the transaction or occurrence that was the subject matter of the previous action. Beavers at ¶ 15, citing Lenard v. Miller, 2013-Ohio-4703, ¶ 27 (8th Dist.), citing Portage Cty. Bd. of Commrs. v. Akron, 2006-Ohio-954, ¶ 84. We find that summary judgment of appellants’ claims in this case was not proper because the dismissals in both the probate court and the federal court cases were not final judgments on the merits and thus were not barred by res judicata. The probate court in Deckman I, dismissed the previous case after finding that Alec lacked standing and that he failed to join necessary parties. However, “[a] dismissal for lack of standing is not an adjudication ‘on the merits’ for the purposes of res judicata.” Superior Piping Contrs. v. Reilly Indus., 2005-Ohio-1318, ¶ 10 (8th Dist.), citing Asher v. Cincinnati, 1999 Ohio App. LEXIS 6223 (1st Dist. Dec. 23, 1999); Metmor Fin. v. Slimmer, 1996 Ohio App. LEXIS 2003 (11th Dist. May 17, 1996); see also State ex rel. Coles v. Granville, 2007-Ohio-6057, ¶ 51. In addition, pursuant to Civ.R. 41(B)(4)(b), the failure to join a party under Civ.R. 19 or 19.1 is a dismissal “otherwise than on the merits.” See Gordon v. Figetakis, 2005-Ohio-5181, ¶ 8 (9th Dist.). The federal case’s dismissal was also not a final adjudication on the merits. The federal court dismissed the federal case for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. This court has previously held that “a dismissal for lack of jurisdiction is not res judicata to a subsequent action.” Ford Motor Credit Co., L.L.C. v. Collins, 2014-Ohio-5152, ¶ 12 (8th Dist.), citing State ex rel. Schneider v. Bd. of Edn., 39 Ohio St.3d 281 (1988). In addition, although there was an accounting in the probate court case, the Deckman I Court found that an accounting is a remedy and not a cause of action. Therefore, the accounting in the probate court case was not an adjudication on the merits. The dismissals in Deckman I and the federal case were not final adjudications on the merits; thus they are not barred by res judicata. Therefore, the trial court erred when it granted appellees’ motion for summary judgment to the extent the trial court granted the motion for summary judgment. Motion to Dismiss Ohio appellate courts review a trial court’s decision regarding a Civ.R. 12(B)(6) motion to dismiss de novo. Perrysburg Twp. v. Rossford, 2004- Ohio-4362. In a de novo review, this court undertakes an independent examination of appellees’ motion to dismiss and affords no deference to the trial court’s determination. Tedeschi v. Atrium Ctrs., L.L.C., 2012-Ohio-2929, ¶ 16 (8th Dist.), citing Gilchrist v. Gonsor, 2007-Ohio-3903 (8th Dist.). Accordingly, “we must presume that all factual allegations of the complaint are true and make all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party.” Doe v. Cuyahoga Cty. Community College, 2024-Ohio-3113, ¶ 20 (8th Dist.), quoting Mitchell v. Lawson Milk Co., 40 Ohio St.3d 190, 192 (1988). As the Ohio Supreme Court has written: [A] plaintiff is not required to prove his or her case at the pleading stage. Very often, the evidence necessary for a plaintiff to prevail is not obtained until the plaintiff is able to discover materials in the defendant’s possession. If the plaintiff were required to prove his or her case in the complaint, many valid claims would be dismissed because of the plaintiff’s lack of access to relevant evidence. Consequently, as long as there is a set of facts, consistent with the plaintiff’s complaint, which would allow the plaintiff to recover, the court may not grant a defendant’s motion to dismiss. York v. Ohio State Hwy. Patrol, 60 Ohio St.3d 143, 145 (1991). See also LeRoy v. Allen, Yurasek & Merklin, 2007-Ohio-3608, ¶ 14 (To affirm dismissal of complaint for failure to state a claim, “it must appear beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of the claim that would entitle the plaintiff to relief.”). In this case, appellees’ motion for dismissal pursuant to Civ.R. 12(B) asserted several arguments. First, appellees moved for dismissal of all claims, asserting dismissal of this case was proper because Deckman I was pending. Second, appellees moved for dismissal under Civ.R. 12(B)(1) of Counts 1 and 2 of appellants’ complaint, asserting the claims were the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal court. Third, appellees moved for dismissal under Civ.R. 12(B)(1) of Count 3, asserting that the claim could only be brought against a governmental entity. Fourth, appellees moved for dismissal under Civ.R. 12(B)(6) of Count 5, asserting that a claim for undue influence is not a tort claim. Lastly, appellees moved for dismissal of Count 7 under Civ.R. 12(B)

(6), asserting that constructive trust is not a cause of action. We first address appellee's contention that dismissal of all of appellants' claims was proper because Deckman I was still pending. We find that this argument is moot. The trial court ruled on appellees' motion in this case on July 3, 2025. This court issued an opinion on Deckman I also on July 3, 2025. Therefore, once this court issued its opinion in Deckman I and did not remand it to the probate court, that case was no longer pending. Courts will not resolve moot issues. Amujiogu v. Oko, 2022-Ohio- 1323, ¶ 4 (8th Dist.), citing In re A.G., 2014-Ohio-2597, ¶ 37; Tschantz v. Ferguson, 57 Ohio St.3d 131, 133 (1991). An issue is moot if "“it seeks to get a judgment on a pretended controversy, when in reality there is none, or a decision in advance about a right before it has been actually asserted and contested, or a judgment upon some matter which, when rendered, for any reason cannot have any practical legal effect upon a then-existing controversy.”" State ex rel. Cincinnati Enquirer v. Hunter, 2014-Ohio-5457, ¶ 4, quoting In re L.W., 2006-Ohio-644, ¶ 11 (10th Dist.), quoting Grove City v. Clark, 2002-Ohio-4549, ¶ 11 (10th Dist.), quoting Culver v. Warren, 84 Ohio App. 373, 393 (11th Dist. 1948). "It is well-established law in Ohio that a court does not have jurisdiction over a moot question." Croce v. Ohio State Univ., 2021-Ohio-2242, ¶ 16 (10th Dist.), citing Bradley v. Ohio State Dept. of Job & Family Servs., 2011-Ohio-1388, ¶ 11 (10th Dist.). Because Deckman I is no longer pending, we find that appellees' argument is moot. Next, we address appellants' assertion that the trial court erred when it dismissed Counts 1 and 2 for declaratory judgments, and Count 3, fraud, of the complaint that generally assert federal claims against appellees. Appellants' brief does not address the trial court's dismissal of Counts 1, 2, and 3. Ohio App.R. 16(A)(7) provides that appellants' appellate brief must include "[a]n argument containing the contentions of the appellant with respect to each assignment of error presented for review and the reasons in support of the contentions, with citations to the authorities, statutes, and parts of the record on which appellant relies." In addition, Ohio App.R. 12(A)(2) provides that the appellate court "may disregard an assignment of error presented for review if the party raising it fails to identify in the record the error on which the assignment of error is based or fails to argue the assignment separately in the brief, as required under App.R. 16(A)." This court has previously found that pursuant to Ohio App.R. 16 and 12, "[i]t is not this court's duty to construct legal arguments to support an appellant's appeal." Walsh v. Walsh, 2023-Ohio-1675, ¶ 11 (8th Dist.), citing State ex rel. Petro v. Gold, 2006-Ohio-943, ¶ 94 (10th Dist.). Thus, we will not address the trial court's dismissal of Counts 1, 2, and 3 of appellants' complaint. Next, we address the trial court's dismissal of Count 5, undue influence. Appellees' motion to dismiss asserted that the remedy sought by appellants in Count 5, monetary damages, was improper and sought dismissal of the claim for that reason. However, appellees' motion did not argue that dismissal was appropriate because appellants' complaint did not properly plead undue influence. The legal authority put forth by appellees does not support dismissal of Count 5. Appellees' motion to dismiss filed with the lower court argued that dismissal of Count 5 was warranted because there was "no authority . . . which permits a tortious cause of action for undue influence to recover money damages." Kingston Natl. Bank v.

Stulley, 1990 Ohio App. LEXIS 4486, ¶ 28 (4th Dist. Sept. 28, 1990), citing Calamari & Perillo, Contracts, § 9-12 (1977). However, in Kingston the court found error when damages were awarded by a jury after a full trial. In addition, appellants sought equitable relief on the undue influence claim in Count 7 where they sought the remedy of a constructive trust of the life insurance proceeds. Thus, dismissal of Count 5 is not proper at this time. In addition, a review of the records reveals that appellees have not established that the appellants can prove no set of facts in support of the undue influence claim that would entitle the appellants to relief. Therefore, the trial court erred when it granted appellees' motion to dismiss Count 5, undue influence, of appellants' complaint. Lastly, appellants' assignment of error as to Count 7 is sustained. In Count 7, appellants sought a constructive trust. As this court noted in Deckman I, the "imposition of a constructive trust and a request for an accounting are generally considered to be remedies, not independent causes of action." Deckman, 2025- Ohio-2360, ¶ 33 (8th Dist.), quoting Haddad v. Maalouf-Masek, 2024-Ohio-1983, ¶ 62 (8th Dist.). Therefore, the trial court did not err when it dismissed Counts 7 and 8 because they are not independent causes of action. However, an accounting and the imposition of a constructive trust are still appropriate remedies for claims that remain pending. For the reasons stated above, appellants' first assignment of error is sustained in part and overruled in part. Counts 4, 5, and 6 remain pending. In their second assignment of error, appellants assert that the trial court erred when it did not provide a written opinion as to why it determined the case on summary judgment. This court has previously found that "a trial court need not set forth any detailed reasoning in an opinion granting summary judgment." Williams v. PNC Bank, N.A., 2022-Ohio-4287, ¶ 64 (8th Dist.), citing Ferguson v. Univ. Hosps. Health Sys., Inc., 2022-Ohio-3133, ¶ 68-71, fn. 12 (8th Dist.). Therefore, appellants' second assignment of error is overruled. For the reasons stated above, the trial court's order is affirmed in part and reversed in part and the case is remanded. The claims in Counts 4, 5, and 6 remain pending. This case is remanded to the trial court with instructions to proceed consistent with this opinion. It is ordered that appellants recover from appellees costs herein taxed. The court finds there were reasonable grounds for this appeal. It is ordered that a special mandate be sent to said court to carry this judgment into execution. A certified copy of this entry shall constitute the mandate pursuant to Rule 27 of the Rules of Appellate Procedure.
