

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Thomas Leroy Hampton v. Kiwana Hill, Ulysses Baniga, Nancy
Hiolmes, Tiffany Gabbard, and S. Onyango

Hampton · No. 1:22-cv-00518-HBK (PC) · Decided March 7, 2025

SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the Eastern District of California disregarded Plaintiff Thomas Leroy Hampton’s brief disputing an affirmative defense of non-exhaustion. The court held that the filing was premature because Defendants had not yet filed an exhaustion-based motion for summary judgment, and stated that Plaintiff could refile or respond if such a motion were filed.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether Plaintiff's preemptive pleading opposing an anticipated exhaustion-based summary judgment motion should be considered before Defendants filed such a motion.

HOLDINGS

1. A plaintiff's preemptive opposition to an exhaustion-based summary judgment motion is premature and may be disregarded when defendants have not yet filed the motion.

KEY QUOTATIONS

"The defense of exhaustion is an affirmative defense that must be raised and proven by a defendant." (at 1)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Plaintiff filed a pleading asserting that he had properly and fully exhausted his administrative remedies and attached exhibits in support. He sought rejection of Defendants' affirmative defense of non-exhaustion. At the time of filing, Defendants had not filed an exhaustion-based motion for summary judgment.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 6, 2025, Plaintiff filed a pleading titled "Brief in Dispute of Affirmative Defen[s]e of Non-Exhaustion," asking the Court to reject Defendants' anticipated non-exhaustion defense. The district court determined that the pleading was premature because Defendants had not filed an exhaustion-based motion for summary judgment and ordered that the pleading be disregarded.
