Peggy Cain, an Individual; Jeffrey Cain, an Individual; and Heli Ops International, LLC v. Richard Price, an Individual; and Mickey Shackelford, an Individual

134 Nev., Advance Opinion 24 (2018) · No. Nos. 69333, 69889, and 70864 · Decided April 12, 2018

SUMMARY

The Nevada Supreme Court held that a party's material breach of a settlement agreement discharged the nonbreaching parties' obligation to release third-party beneficiaries from liability. The court reversed summary judgment for the respondents, vacated prevailing-party attorney fees, and held that the appellants were entitled to discovery of the respondents' personal financial documents in support of punitive-damages claims. It affirmed other rulings, including litigation sanctions related to post-judgment subpoenas, and remanded for further proceedings.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the settlement agreement was supported by consideration despite C4's preexisting obligation to pay the Cains.
2. Whether C4's material breach of the settlement agreement discharged the Cains' promise not to sue C4's officers, who were third-party beneficiaries of the release.
3. Whether the district court improperly denied discovery of Price and Shackelford's personal financial documents sought to support punitive-damages claims.
4. Whether the district court abused its discretion by bifurcating trial and resolving personal-jurisdiction and alter-ego issues in a pretrial evidentiary hearing.
5. Whether post-judgment subpoenas were properly quashed and sanctions properly imposed.

HOLDINGS

1. The settlement agreement was a valid contract supported by consideration because it removed an implied condition precedent that had limited C4's original payment obligation.
2. C4's material breach of the settlement agreement discharged the Cains' promise not to sue C4's officers, including Price and Shackelford as third-party beneficiaries.
3. Summary judgment for Price and Shackelford was improper because the settlement agreement's release provision no longer bound the Cains after C4's material breach.
4. The district court abused its discretion by denying the requested financial discovery because the Cains presented some factual basis for their punitive-damages claims.
5. The district court did not abuse its discretion by bifurcating trial and resolving personal-jurisdiction and alter-ego issues in a pretrial evidentiary hearing.
6. The district court properly quashed subpoenas served after dismissal and awarded $9,514 in sanctions under Nevada Revised Statutes § 18.010(2)(b).

KEY QUOTATIONS

“When parties exchange promises to perform, one party's material breach of its promise discharges the non-breaching party's duty to perform.” (134 Nev., Adv. Op. 24, at 6-7)

“Absent exceptions not relevant here, one party's material breach of a contract discharges the non-breaching party's duty to perform.” (134 Nev., Adv. Op. 24, at 12)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Peggy and Jeffrey Cain, through Heli Ops International, LLC, entered into a joint venture agreement with C4 Worldwide, Inc., under which Heli Ops loaned C4 $1 million for acquiring and leveraging collateralized mortgage obligations. After C4 failed to distribute profits, the parties executed a settlement agreement requiring C4 to pay the Cains $20 million unconditionally within 90 days and requiring the Cains to release C4 and its officers from liability. C4 failed to pay, and the Cains sued C4 and several officers, including respondents Price and Shackelford. The district court awarded default judgment against some defendants and granted Price and Shackelford summary judgment based on the release.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Cains sued C4 Worldwide, Inc., its CEO, and several officers for breach of contract and various torts after C4 failed to pay $20 million under a settlement agreement. The district court entered default judgment against C4, its CEO, and two officers, while Price and Shackelford obtained summary judgment based on the settlement agreement's release provision. The district court also awarded Price and Shackelford prevailing-party attorney fees, denied the Cains' motion to compel financial discovery, and imposed sanctions for post-dismissal subpoenas. The Supreme Court of Nevada reversed the summary judgment and prevailing-party fee award, held that discovery should have been allowed, and affirmed the bifurcation and subpoena-sanction orders.

DISPOSITION

reversed_and_remanded

REMAND INSTRUCTIONS

Remand for proceedings consistent with the opinion after reversing the summary judgment for Price and Shackelford, vacating the $95,843.56 prevailing-party attorney-fee award, and allowing the Cains' requested discovery of personal financial documents. The $9,514 litigation sanction was affirmed.

PEGGY CAIN, AN INDIVIDUAL; No. 70864 JEFFREY CAIN, AN INDIVIDUAL; AND HELI OPS INTERNATIONAL, LLC, AN OREGON LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY, Appellants, vs. RICHARD PRICE, AN INDIVIDUAL; AND MICKEY SHACKELFORD, AN INDIVIDUAL, Respondents. Consolidated appeals from a district court summary judgment and post-judgment orders awarding attorney fees and sanctions in a SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947.4 I g-I d ozo contract and tort action.

Ninth Judicial District Court, Douglas County; Thomas W. Gregory, Judge. Affirmed in part, reversed in part, and remanded. Lemons, Grundy & Eisenberg and Robert L. Eisenberg, Reno; Matuska Law Offices, Ltd., and Michael L. Matuska, Carson City, for Appellants. Oshinski & Forsberg, Ltd., and Mark Forsberg, Carson City, for Respondents. BEFORE HARDESTY, PARRAGUIRRE and STIGLICH, JJ. OPINION By the Court, STIGLICH, J.: In these appeals, we consider whether one party's material breach of a contract releases the non-breaching party's contractual obligation to a third-party beneficiary.

We conclude that it does. Because the promisor in this case failed to fulfill its contractual obligations to appellants under a settlement agreement, respondents as third-party beneficiaries were not entitled to the contract's release from liability.

We therefore reverse the district court's orders granting summary judgment and other relief and remand with instructions. FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY Appellants Peggy and Jeffrey Cain, as owners of Heli Ops International, entered into a joint venture agreement (JVA) with C4

Worldwide, Inc. The JVA provided that Heli Ops would loan $1,000,000 to C4 for the purpose of acquiring and then leveraging Collateralized SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A 2 ■#11 Mortgage Obligations (CMOs).

In return, Heli Ops would receive the first $20,000,000 in profits from C4's leveraging of the assets, while retaining a 49 percent security interest in the CMOs until C4 had paid out that amount. The Coins transferred $1,000,000 to C4, but C4 did not distribute any profits to the Cains. The Cains subsequently entered into a "Settlement Agreement and Release of All Claims" with C4 and its CEO.

In the Settlement Agreement, C4 agreed to pay the Cains $20,000,000 "no later than 90 days from February 25, 2010." In return, the Cains agreed to release C4 and its officers from any liability for C4's "financial misfortunes and resultant inability to timely pay."

The Agreement further provided that California law governed its construction and interpretation and that the prevailing party in any action arising under the Settlement Agreement would be entitled to fees and costs. C4 failed to pay $20,000,000 by the date specified in the Settlement Agreement. Consequently, the Cains sued C4 and six of its officers, including the respondents in this case: Richard Price and Mickey Shackelford.

The Cains alleged breach of the Settlement Agreement, fraud, civil conspiracy, negligence, conversion, and intentional interference with contractual relations. After extended litigation, the district court awarded default judgment against C4, its CEO, and two other C4 officers on all claims in the amount of $20,000,000, plus costs and fees. Following the default judgment, only Price, Shackelford, and a third officer remained as defendants.

The third officer subsequently settled with the Cains. Price and Shackelford moved for summary judgment, claiming that the Settlement Agreement released them from liability for C4's actions and precluded the Cains' suit.

The Cains opposed, arguing that the SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A e 3 Settlement Agreement was invalid for lack of consideration. The district court granted summary judgment to Price and Shackelford, reasoning that the Settlement Agreement was supported by consideration and that the Cains bound themselves to that Agreement's release provision when they elected to seek damages for C4's breach of contract.

The Cains appeal from that order granting summary judgment. They also appeal several interlocutory and post-judgment orders, as described further below. DISCUSSION The district court erred in granting summary judgment because the Cains are not bound by the Settlement Agreement's release provision. The Cains argue that summary judgment was inappropriate for two reasons.

First, the Cains argue that the Settlement Agreement was invalid, so the release provision had no effect. Second, the Cains argue that, even if the Settlement Agreement was valid, C4's material breach of that Agreement released the Coins from their obligation under that Agreement not to sue C4's officers. Reviewing the district court's order granting summary judgment de novo, see Wood v. Safeway, Inc., 121 Nev. 724, 729, 121 P.3d 1026, 1029 (2005), we conclude that summary judgment was improper.

The Settlement Agreement was a valid contract. The Coins first argue that the Settlement Agreement does not release Price and Shackelford from liability, because the Settlement Agreement was invalid for lack of consideration.¹ They argue that the "The Coins also argue that the Settlement Agreement is invalid due to fraud in the inducement.

The facts underlying this issue were not adequately developed at the district court level for this court to review. SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A a• 4 I D.4 Settlement Agreement merely acknowledged C4's preexisting obligation to pay the Cains $20,000,000 and thus provided no consideration to the Cains in exchange for the release of liability.

We disagree and affirm the district court's ruling that the Settlement Agreement was supported by consideration—namely, removal of a condition precedent to payment. To be legally enforceable, a contract "must be supported by consideration."² Jones v. SunTrust Mortg., Inc., 128 Nev. 188, 191, 274 P.3d 762, 764 (2012). "Consideration is the exchange of a promise or performance, bargained for by the parties."

Id. A party's affirmation of a preexisting duty is generally not adequate consideration to support a new agreement. See Cty. of Clark v. Bonanza No. 1, 96 Nev. 643, 650, 615 P.2d 939, 943 (1980). However, where a party's promise, offered as consideration, differs from that which it already promised, there is sufficient consideration to support the subsequent agreement.

However, neither party's briefings address this choice-of-law issue; they both cite Nevada caselaw as governing, as does the district court's relevant orders. Therefore, we treat the choice-of-law provision as waived by mutual consent of both parties and apply Nevada law throughout this opinion. SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A 4444. ⁵ does not explicitly so provide.

Las Vegas Star Taxi, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 102 Nev. 11, 12, 714 P.2d 562, 562 (1986). Here, the JVA provided that C4 would pay the Coins "Mho first twenty million USD ($20,000,000) received from the proceeds and profits of leveraging the CMOs." Implicit in that statement is that there must be $20,000,000 in "proceeds and profits" for the Coins to receive that money.

Thus, the existence of $20,000,000 in "proceeds and profits" was a condition precedent to the Coins receiving $20,000,000 from C4. 3 The Settlement Agreement, by contrast, contains no condition precedent. It unconditionally obligates C4 "to pay the sum of $20,000,000, plus all accumulated interest, to Coins no later than 90 days from February 25, 2010."

Thus, the effect of the Settlement Agreement was to remove the condition precedent from C4's $20,000,000 obligation. Elimination of that condition precedent constitutes adequate consideration for the Settlement Agreement to be legally enforceable. See Jones, 128 Nev. at 191, 274 P.3d at 764.

Therefore, the district court correctly held that the Settlement Agreement was a valid contract. C4's breach of the Settlement Agreement releases the Gains from their obligation under that Agreement. The Coins next contend that, assuming the Settlement Agreement was a valid contract, the district court nonetheless erred in holding that the Settlement Agreement released Price and Shackelford. At oral argument before this court, the Coins' counsel argued that, the JVA's language notwithstanding, a promissory note attached to the JVA unconditionally obligated C4 to pay $20,000,000.

That argument is untenable given this language within the promissory note: "C4... promises to pay... the amount of Twenty Million USD... as per the terms specified in the Joint Venture Agreement." (Emphasis added.) SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A e° 6 from liability.

In particular, they attack the district court's conclusion that the Cains bound themselves to the terms of the Settlement Agreement when they declined to rescind that Agreement and instead sought damages for C4's breach.

The Cains argue that their suit for damages does not bind them to the terms of the Settlement Agreement. We agree with the Cains. When parties exchange promises to perform, one party's material breach of its promise discharges the non-breaching party's duty to perform. Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 237 (Am. Law Inst. 1981). If the non-breaching party's duty was to a third-party beneficiary, the same principle applies: the breaching party's "failure of performance" discharges the beneficiary's right to enforce the contract.

4 Id. at § 309(2) & cmt. b. Moreover, a material breach of contract also "gives rise to a claim for damages." Id. at § 243(1). Thus, the injured party is both excused from its contractual obligation and entitled to seek damages for the other party's breach. See id. § 243 cmt. a, illus. 1.

Here, the Settlement Agreement was an exchange of one promise to perform for another promise to perform. That is, C4 promised the Cains $20,000,000 in exchange for the Cains' promise to release C4's officers from liability for C4's conduct.

The Cains were bound by their promise until C4 materially breached the contract 90 days after February 25, 2010, the date on which C4's $20,000,000 was due. At that point, the `While there are several possible exceptions to this rule—for example, where the beneficiary changes its position in reliance on the agreement, or where the contract expressly or implicitly guarantees a beneficiary's right regardless of other parties' performance, see Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 309 cmt. b—the facts of this case do not implicate those exceptions.

SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A 7 Coins were released from their promise not to sue C4's officers. See id. at § 309(2). The complication in this case stems from the $20,000,000 default judgment previously awarded to the Coins. In briefing before the district court, the Coins elected to enforce that default judgment and rejected the possibility of rescinding the Settlement Agreement.

Based on those facts, the district court reasoned that the Coins elected to honor the Agreement and therefore bound themselves to its terms—namely, the promise not to hold C4's officers liable. In so reasoning, the district court conflated two remedy concepts: specific performance and damages for total breach of contract. Specific performance requires the parties to perform as they promised in the original agreement.

See Mayfield v. Koroghli, 124 Nev. 343, 351, 184 P.3d 362, 367-68 (2008) (discussing when it is appropriate for a court to order specific performance). Damages for total breach, by contrast, awards the non-breaching party a monetary award sufficient to place that party in the position it expected to find itself had all parties honored the contract. See Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 347.

In the present case, the district court erroneously interpreted the $20,000,000 default judgment to be an order for specific performance. That misinterpretation likely occurred because $20,000,000 would have been the appropriate amount had the district court ordered specific performance. But the Coins never sought specific performance of the Settlement Agreement, and that is not what the district court ordered when it granted default judgment to the Coins.

Rather, the district court awarded damages for breach of contract, fraud, and other claims. While $20,000,000 may greatly exceed the amount of damages the Coins actually suffered, the SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A 8 propriety of that amount is not presently before this court.

Because the default judgment awarded damages rather than specific performance, it did not bind the Cains to their original promise within the Settlement Agreement. See Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 243 cmt. a, illus. 1.

In sum, C4's breach of the Settlement Agreement relieved the Cains of their obligation to Price and Shackelford, third-party beneficiaries under that Agreement. We therefore reverse the district court's order granting summary judgment to Price and Shackelford.

We also vacate the district court's order awarding $95,843.56 in attorney fees to Price and Shackelford as prevailing parties. They are no longer prevailing parties, so that award is inappropriate. See Wheeler Springs Plaza, LLC v. Beeman, 119 Nev. 260, 268, 71 P.3d 1258, 1263 (2003) (involving the reversal of an award of attorney fees where the district court's judgment on the verdict was overturned).

The district court abused its discretion when it denied the Gains' motion to compel discovery of Price and Shackelford's personal financial documents. Prior to the district court's grant of summary judgment, the Cains moved to compel discovery of Price and Shackelford's personal financial documents.

The Cains sought those documents as evidence to support their fraud claim against Price and Shackelford. In denying the Cains' request, the district court found that the Cains presented an inadequate factual basis for fraud to support a punitive damages claim, so discovery of personal financial documents was inappropriate under Hetter v. Eighth Judicial District Court, 110 Nev. 513, 519-20, 874 P.2d 762, 765-66 (1994).

This court generally reviews discovery orders for an abuse of discretion. Club Vista Fin. Servs., LLC v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court, 128 Nev. 224, 228, 276 P.3d 246, 249 (2012). However, this court reviews SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A se 9 f. whether a district court has applied the proper legal standard de novo. Staccato v. Valley Hosp., 123 Nev. 526, 530 n.4, 170 P.3d 503, 506 n.4 (2007).

Discovery is proper for any matter that is not privileged and is relevant to the subject matter of the action before the court. NRCp 26(b)(1). However, due to privacy concerns and the potential for "abuse and harassment," a defendant's personal financial information can "not be had for the mere asking." Hetter, 110 Nev. at 520, 874 P.2d at 766.

To discover that information, a "plaintiff must demonstrate some factual basis for [a] punitive damage claim." Id. To succeed on a punitive damage claim in this contractual context, the plaintiff must show by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant was guilty of "oppression, fraud or malice." NRS 42.005(1).

Here, the Gains pursued punitive damages on claims of fraud, civil conspiracy, and conversion. The Gains presented evidence showing that their loan proceeds were distributed to C4 officers rather than being used to purchase CMOs, as per the JVA. While that evidence might not amount to "clear and convincing" evidence that Price and Shackelford committed "oppression, fraud, or malice," NRS 42.005(1), such alleged misuse of funds contrary to the JVA constitutes "some factual basis" for those claims such that discovery was proper.

Hetter, 110 Nev. at 520, 874 P.2d at 766; see also Sherwin v. Infinity Auto Ins. Co., No. 2:11—CV-00043—JCM—LRL, 2011 WL 4500883, at *3 (D. Nev. Sept. 27, 2011) (distinguishing plaintiffs' burdens at the discovery stage from their burdens at the trial stage).

We therefore conclude that the district court improperly denied discovery of Price and Shackelford's personal financial documents. The Gains' remaining claims are without merit. The Gains appeal several additional orders entered by the SUPREME COURT district court.

First, they argue that the district court abused its discretion. Of NEVADA (0) 1947A 10 In bifurcating trial and resolving issues of personal jurisdiction and alter ego in a pretrial evidentiary hearing. Reviewing the district court's decision to bifurcate for an abuse of discretion, see Awada v. Shuffle Master, Inc., 123 Nev. 613, 621, 173 P.3d 707, 712 (2007), we find no abuse and therefore affirm.

Second, the Cains appeal post-judgment orders from the district court related to subpoenas and sanctions. In those orders, the district court found that the Cains had abused the discovery process by serving subpoenas on Price and Shackelford after the case was dismissed, so the district court quashed the subpoenas and awarded $9,514 in attorney fees to Price and Shackelford pursuant to NRS 18.010(2)(b) (authorizing courts to award attorney fees for claims "maintained without reasonable ground or to harass the prevailing party").

Having reviewed the court's decisions for an abuse of discretion, see Bahena v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 126 Nev. 243, 249, 235 P.3d 592, 596 (2010) (stating the standard of review for a district court's order imposing sanctions); Consol. Generator-Nev., Inc. v. Cummins Engine Co., 114 Nev. 1304, 1312, 971 P.2d 1251, 1256 (1998) (same for an order to quash subpoenas), we see no cause to reverse the district court's orders.

We agree with the district court's conclusion that there was no "reasonable ground" to serve subpoenas on the defendants after the case was dismissed. NRS 18.010(2)(b). We reject the CaMs' argument that our reversal of summary judgment also requires reversal of these post-judgment orders. SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA (0) 1947A 11 While our reversal of the district court's final disposition requires us to reverse a grant of attorney's fees to the extent that the fees were granted because a party prevailed, 5 see Gibby's, Inc. v. Aylett, 96 Nev. 678, 681, 615 P.2d 949, 951 (1980), we may reverse a district court's final disposition while affirming a district court's award of sanctions pursuant to NRS 18.010(2)(b).

Thus, we affirm the district court's order granting Price and Shackelford $9,514 as a litigation sanction against the Cains. CONCLUSION Absent exceptions not relevant here, one party's material breach of a contract discharges the non-breaching party's duty to perform under that contract.

In this case, C4's failure to pay the Cains the promised sum released the Coins from their promise not to hold C4's officers liable. Therefore, we reverse the district court's grant of summary judgment and remand this matter to the district court for proceedings consistent with this opinion..Acits2 Stiglich We concur:, J. Hardesty Ler Parraguirre J. 5Asnoted above, we reverse the order granting attorney fees to Price and Shackelford as prevailing parties.
