Strike 3 Holdings, LLC v. John Doe subscriber assigned IP address
67.181.183.192

No. 2:25-cv-03447-JAM-CKD · No. No. 2:25-cv-03447-JAM-CKD · Decided December 16, 2025

SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the Eastern District of California grants Strike 3 Holdings, LLC’s ex parte application for expedited discovery to identify the subscriber associated with an IP address allegedly used for BitTorrent copyright infringement. The order limits the subpoena to the subscriber’s name and address, requires notice and privacy safeguards, prohibits formal service absent further order, and establishes procedures for a potential informal conference and status reporting.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	United States District Court for the Eastern District of California
JURISDICTION	United States District Court for the Eastern District of California
DECIDED	December 16, 2025
DOCKET	No. 2:25-cv-03447-JAM-CKD
DISPOSITION	other
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Plaintiff sought ex parte leave to conduct expedited discovery and serve a third-party subpoena on the defendant's internet service provider before the Rule 26(f) conference in order to identify the anonymous defendant.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Good cause governs whether expedited discovery should be permitted before the Rule 26(f) conference. In evaluating the subpoena request, the court considered the five factors identified in Arista Records, LLC v. Doe 3 , including the prima facie showing, specificity, alternative means, need for the information, and the defendant's privacy expectation.
PRECEDENTIAL VALUE	unpublished district court order
PARTIES	Strike 3 Holdings, LLC v. John Doe subscriber assigned IP address 67.181.183.192

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether plaintiff established good cause for expedited discovery before the Rule 26(f) conference.
2. Whether the court should authorize a third-party subpoena to the ISP to identify the person or entity associated with the subject IP address.
3. What privacy and procedural safeguards were required before permitting the subpoena and any subsequent service of process.

HOLDINGS

1. Expedited discovery may be authorized before the Rule 26(f) conference when good cause exists, meaning the need for expedited discovery, in light of the administration of justice, outweighs prejudice to the responding party.
2. The court authorized a subpoena to the ISP seeking only the true name and address of the person or entity to whom the subject IP address was assigned.
3. The subpoena could issue only with safeguards protecting the potential defendant, including notice, an opportunity to move to quash, restrictions on disclosure, and a prohibition on formal service absent further court order.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Good cause exists ‘where the need for expedited discovery, in consideration of the administration of justice, outweighs the prejudice to the responding party.’” (at 2)

“To simply issue an order for expedited discovery as requested here, raises a serious constitutional question of the IP address owner’s reasonable expectation of privacy.” (at 3)

“Establishing that the person identified by discovery is the person who infringed upon the copyright will likely require additional proofs beyond the fact that the individual is listed as the subscriber on the account from which the infringing activity originated.” (at 4)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Strike 3 alleged that it owns copyrights in adult films and that an anonymous defendant used BitTorrent to download and distribute the films. The only identifying information available to plaintiff was the IP address 67.181.183.192, and plaintiff sought the subscriber's true name and address from the ISP. The court noted that an IP address may identify a network or subscriber rather than the individual who performed the alleged downloading, and that mistaken identification could cause embarrassment, reputational harm, or coercive settlement pressure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Strike 3 Holdings filed a copyright-infringement action on November 26, 2025, against an unidentified subscriber associated with a specified IP address. Plaintiff then filed an ex parte application for leave to subpoena the ISP before the Rule 26(f) conference. The court granted the application subject to limits on the discovery, notice, service, confidentiality, and opportunities for the potential defendant to challenge the subpoena.

OPINION

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT 9 FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA 10 11 STRIKE 3 HOLDINGS, LLC, No. 2:25-cv-03447-JAM-CKD 12 Plaintiff, 13 v. ORDER 14 JOHN DOE subscriber assigned IP address 67.181.183.192, 15 Defendant. 16 17 18 I. INTRODUCTION 19 Plaintiff filed this matter on November 26, 2025, alleging it holds the copyright on various 20 adult films, and that defendant is infringing on those copyrights by anonymously downloading 21 and distributing Strike 3’s films to others, using the BitTorrent protocol.

(ECF No. 1.) Plaintiff 22 can only identify defendant by his or her IP address, through which defendant downloads and 23 distributes the films. (Id.) To acquire the true name and address of defendant, plaintiff brings an 24 ex parte application to engage in expedited discovery and serve a third-party subpoena, prior to a 25 Rule 26(f) conference, on defendant’s internet service provider (“ISP”).

(ECF No. 3-1.) Plaintiff 26 asserts that without the subpoena it will be unable to serve the complaint on defendant and will, 27 therefore, be prevented from vindicating its copyright. (Id.) 28 //// 1 II. DISCUSSION 2 A. Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 26(d) and (f) 3 Rule 26(d) states “[a] party may not seek discovery from any source before the parties 4 have conferred as required by Rule 26(f), except in a proceeding excepted from initial disclosure 5 under Rule 26(a)(1)(B), or when authorized by these rules, by stipulation, or by court order.” 6 Rule 26(f) contemplates a pre-discovery conference between the parties to facilitate the 7 development of a discovery plan that will control throughout the litigation.

Obviously, in the 8 absence of knowledge of the actual party being sued, no discovery conference can be held. Thus, 9 plaintiff seeks relief from that requirement from the court. 10 Courts in the Ninth Circuit apply the “good cause” standard in deciding whether to permit 11 early discovery. See Semitool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron America, Inc., 208 F.R.D. 273, 276 (N.D.

12 Cal. 2002). “Good cause exists ‘where the need for expedited discovery, in consideration of the 13 administration of justice, outweighs the prejudice to the responding party.’” Id. Good cause for 14 expedited discovery has been found in cases involving claims of infringement and unfair 15 competition. Id. In infringement cases, expedited discovery is frequently limited to allowing 16 plaintiffs to identify Doe defendants.

See UMG Recordings, Inc. v. Doe, 2008 WL 4104207, at 17 *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 4, 2008). 18 B. Standard for Determining Whether to Issue the Requested Subpoena 19 In Arista Records, LLC v. Doe 3, the Second Circuit articulated five principal factors to 20 consider when a defendant seeks to quash a subpoena in a situation like this: (1) the concreteness 21 of plaintiff’s showing of a prima facie claim of actionable harm; (2) the specificity of the 22 discovery requests; (3) the absence of alternative means to obtain the subpoenaed information; (4) 23 the need for subpoenaed information to advance the claim; and (5) defendant’s expectation of 24 privacy.

604 F.3d 110, 119 (2nd Cir. 2010) (citing Sony Music Entm’t Inc. v. Does 1-40, 326 25 F.Supp.2d 556, 564-65 (S.D.N.Y. 2004)). While no defendant has appeared in this matter and 26 there is no pending motion to quash, the factors enunciated by the Second Circuit in Arista are 27 useful in determining whether to grant plaintiff’s ex parte application. 28 //// 1 Here, the first four factors weigh in plaintiff’s favor: (1) plaintiff has stated a prima facie 2 claim by providing a list of downloads of its copyrighted films that had been downloaded to the 3 subject IP address; (2) plaintiff specifically seeks to discover only the name and contact 4 information for the individual using that IP address; (3) plaintiff is unable to identify this 5 individual other than by subpoenaing the ISP; and (4) without identifying defendant, plaintiff will 6 be unable to proceed with the instant copyright action.

7 At the same time, the last factor weighs against granting plaintiff’s request, without 8 additional safeguards. To simply issue an order for expedited discovery as requested here, raises 9 a serious constitutional question of the IP address owner's reasonable expectation of privacy. 10 C. The Need for Privacy Protection 11 As the United States Supreme Court made clear in Griswold v. Connecticut, "specific 12 guarantees in the Bill of Rights have penumbras formed by emanations from those guarantees that 13 give them life and substance." 381 U.S. 479, 485 (1965).

The Supreme Court found a right to 14 privacy emanating from several Amendments, notably the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and 15 Fourteenth. Id. Privacy can encompass fundamental and traditional activities such as marriage, 16 medical records, or more recently found rights such as commercial privacy. Still, the right to 17 privacy is not absolute, and is balanced against other societal interests, especially in the litigation 18 context.

See Soto v. City of Concord, 162 F.R.D. 603, 618 (N.D. Cal. 1995). 19 Here, the limited privacy protection afforded under the Constitution must be considered 20 for the person who will be identified by the procedure of serving a subpoena on an ISP. Indeed, 21 the assumption 22 that the person who pays for Internet access at a given location is the same individual who allegedly downloaded a single sexually explicit 23 film is tenuous, and one that has grown more so over time.

An IP address provides only the location at which one of any number of 24 computer devices may be deployed, much like a telephone number can be used for any number of telephones. As one introductory guide 25 states: 26 If you only connect one computer to the Internet, that computer can use the address from your ISP. Many homes 27 today, though, use routers to share a single Internet connection between multiple computers.

Wireless routers 28 have become especially popular in recent years, avoiding the 1 need to run network cables between rooms. If you use a router to share an Internet connection, the router gets the IP 2 address issued directly from the ISP. Then, it creates and manages a subnet for all the computers connected to that 3 router. 4 Thus, it is no more likely that the subscriber to an IP address carried out a particular computer function—here the purported illegal 5 downloading of a single pornographic film—than to say an individual who pays the telephone bill made a specific telephone call.

6 7 In re BitTorrent Adult Film Copyright Infringement Cases, 296 F.R.D. 80, 84 (E.D.N.Y. 2012). 8 As such, "[e]stablishing that the person identified by discovery is the person who 9 infringed upon the copyright will likely require additional proofs beyond the fact that the 10 individual is listed as the subscriber on the account from which the infringing activity originated." 11 Manny Film LLC v. Doe Subscriber Assigned IP Address 50.166-88-98, 98 F.Supp.3d 693, 695 12 (D.N.J.

2015) (citing Malibu Media, LLC v. John Does 1-18, No. 12-7643(NLH/AMD), 2013 13 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 155911, at *8-9 (D.N.J. Mar. 22, 2013). 14 Finally, consideration must be given to the fact that this particular case—focused on the 15 alleged theft of pornographic films—would have a different effect on an individual wrongly 16 identified as a defendant than would a run-of-the-mill copyright infringement case.

Such a 17 wrongly named defendant would likely feel exposed to embarrassment and reputational damage, 18 even before he or she could engage counsel and litigate the issue of mistaken identity through a 19 motion to quash.

Moreover, the possibility exists of being forced into a settlement to avoid the 20 effects of such “exposure.” See In re BitTorrent, supra, 296 F.R.D. at 90. 21 III. CONCLUSION 22 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED: 23 1. Plaintiff’s Ex Parte Application for Leave to Serve a Third-Party Subpoena Prior 24 to a Rule 26(f) Conference (ECF No. 3) is GRANTED on the terms of this order.

25 2. Plaintiff may engage in limited expedited discovery to establish the identity of the 26 owner of the IP address identified in the complaint by serving a subpoena on the ISP provider of 27 the subject IP address. 28 /// 1 3.

The ISP shall be served with a subpoena seeking only the true name and address of 2 the person or entity to whom the subject IP address is assigned. 3 4. Within ten (10) days after plaintiff has obtained the actual identity of the person or 4 entity associated with the subject IP address, plaintiff shall serve a copy of this order on that 5 person or entity.

Plaintiff need not mail such a copy if the action is dismissed prior to the 6 expiration of that ten-day period. 7 5. No formal service of process shall be permitted absent further order of this court. 8 6. The parties—both plaintiff and the potential defendant—are hereby invited to 9 attend an informal conference before the undersigned for the following purposes: 10 a. To set a schedule that will allow the defendant an opportunity to file a 11 motion to quash the subpoena, if there are true and adequate grounds 12 therefor; and 13 b. To establish procedures for service of process or waiver thereof.

14 7. This informal conference may take place via telephone or Zoom. The parties 15 should contact the courtroom deputy, Lisa Kennison, at lkennison@caed.uscourts.gov to arrange 16 an informal conference if they wish to schedule one. 17 8.

The parties are advised that attendance at such a conference is voluntary and will 18 not itself constitute a waiver of service of the complaint, or result in a finding of “appearance” in 19 the litigation, unless the potential defendant agrees to waive service, or the case is resolved and a 20 settlement is placed on the record. 21 9. Not later than 60 days from the date of this order, plaintiff shall file a status report 22 including the following: 23 a. Whether service of this order has been effectuated as directed; 24 b. Whether defendant has agreed to attend an informal conference; and 25 c. If applicable, whether the parties seek a telephonic or in person conference.

26 d. The status report shall continue to identify the defendant by John or Jane 27 Doe at the subject IP address. 28 //// 1 10. _—‘XIf plaintiff makes any routine requests in the status report, including but not 2 || limited to a request for the court to order that a further status report be filed, then plaintiff shall 3 || electronically submit a pdf version of a proposed order and shall email a separate proposed order 4 || in Word format to the Magistrate Judge’s email box listed on the court’s website.

See Local Rule 5 | 137. 6 11. = After receipt of the status report, the court will schedule an informal conference, if 7 || necessary. 8 12. A decision by the person identified as the owner of the subject IP address not to 9 || attend an informal conference will lead to an order substituting the identified defendant by name, 10 || permitting ordinary service of process, and commencement of the litigation.

11 13. _—— Plaintiff is cautioned that, until permission is given by the court, it is not to reveal 12 || the identity of the defendant in or out of court. 13 14. _— Nothing in this order precludes plaintiff and defendant from reaching a settlement 14 | without court participation before any informal conference is held or formal service of process is 15 | effectuated.
