QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether good cause existed to permit service of a third-party Rule 45 subpoena on the Internet service provider before a Rule 26(f) conference.
2. What notice, objection, preservation, production, and confidentiality conditions should govern the subpoena.

HOLDINGS

1. Good cause existed for Plaintiff to serve a Rule 45 subpoena on Comcast Cable Communications, LLC, and any subsequently identified Internet service provider, to obtain the true name and address of the Doe defendant associated with the specified IP address.
2. The ISP must provide notice to the subscriber, allow 30 days for motions contesting the subpoena, preserve responsive information, and withhold production until the objection period expires or a timely motion is finally resolved; disclosure is restricted to protecting and enforcing Plaintiff's rights and must remain under seal absent further court authorization.

KEY QUOTATIONS

"Plaintiff has established "good cause" exists to serve a third-party subpoena on the internet service provider, Comcast Cable Communications, LLC (the "ISP")." (Order ¶ 1)

"Plaintiff may only use the information disclosed in response to a Rule 45 subpoena served on the ISP for the purpose of protecting and enforcing its rights as set forth in the Complaint." (Order ¶ 8)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Strike 3 Holdings, LLC sued a John Doe subscriber associated with IP address 73.252.184.71. Plaintiff sought discovery from Comcast Cable Communications, LLC, or another identified Internet service provider, to obtain the Doe defendant's true name and address. The court authorized the requested subpoena subject to notice, an opportunity to move to quash or modify, preservation obligations, and restrictions on disclosure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Strike 3 Holdings, LLC filed an action against a John Doe defendant identified by an IP address and moved for leave to subpoena the defendant's Internet service provider before the Rule 26(f) conference. The district court granted the application and established notice, objection, preservation, production, and confidentiality procedures.
