In re Rosa Serrano, Individually

No. 08-14-00308-CV · No. 08-14-00308-CV · Decided January 19, 2015

SUMMARY

The Eighth District Court of Appeals of Texas considered Rosa Serrano’s petition for writ of mandamus seeking to compel judicial foreclosure on a constitutional lien against real property. The court held that Serrano failed to establish a clear abuse of discretion or the absence of an adequate remedy by appeal and denied mandamus relief. The opinion also granted rehearing and expedited disposition after withdrawing the court’s prior opinion, while denying as moot a motion to recuse Justice Hughes.

PRACTICE AREAS

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether Rosa Serrano established entitlement to mandamus relief by showing a clear abuse of discretion and the absence of an adequate remedy by appeal.
2. Whether the motion to recuse Justice Hughes remained justiciable after his voluntary recusal.

HOLDINGS

1. The relator was not entitled to mandamus relief because she failed to establish the requirements for mandamus relief.
2. The motion to recuse Justice Hughes was denied as moot because Justice Hughes had voluntarily recused himself from the case.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“To be entitled to mandamus relief, Relator must meet two requirements.” (at 2)

“Based on the petition and record before us, we conclude that Relator has failed to establish that she is entitled to mandamus relief.” (at 2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Rosa Serrano sought mandamus relief concerning a purported constitutional lien against real property owned by Pellicano Business Park, L.L.C. The mandamus record referenced several orders in an underlying case involving a purported mechanical and materialman's lien claim. Serrano asked the appellate court to compel judicial foreclosure of the alleged constitutional lien.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The court had previously denied mandamus relief in an opinion issued December 19, 2014. On rehearing, the court granted the motion for rehearing and expedited disposition, withdrew its prior opinion and judgment, denied as moot the motion to recuse Justice Hughes because he had voluntarily recused himself, and again denied the petition for writ of mandamus.
