

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Robert G. Furst v. Linda Mayne, et al.

Furst · No. CV-21-01287-PHX-DLR · Decided December 19, 2025

SUMMARY

The court denies Plaintiff Robert G. Furst’s motion to strike Defendants’ untimely response to his motion for sanctions. Although the response was filed six days late without an extension and was therefore subject to being stricken under the local rules, the court declined to strike it because Plaintiff did not show prejudice from the delay.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

- Whether Plaintiff's motion to strike was procedurally proper under Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(m) (1).

2. Whether Defendants' response was filed in violation of the deadline in Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(c).
3. Whether the court should exercise its discretion to strike the untimely response absent a showing of prejudice.

HOLDINGS

1. A motion to strike is procedurally proper when it seeks to strike a filing that is prohibited or unauthorized by a statute, rule, or court order, including a filing that does not comply with the local rules.
2. Defendants' response was filed out of compliance with Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(c) because it was filed six days after the fourteen-day deadline and Defendants had not obtained an extension.
3. Although the court had discretion to strike the untimely response, it declined to do so because Plaintiff had not shown prejudice from the six-day delay.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Unless made at trial, a motion to strike may be filed only if it is authorized by statute or rule, such as Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(f), 26(g)(2) or 37(b)(2)(A)(iii), or if it seeks to strike any part of a filing or submission on the ground that it is prohibited (or not authorized) by a statute, rule, or court order.” (at 1)

“When ruling on a motion to strike, the Court first ascertains whether the filing at issue may be stricken.” (at 2)

“Motions to strike are disfavored, and courts generally deny them absent a showing of prejudice.” (at 2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Plaintiff filed a motion for sanctions against Defendants and their counsel. Defendants' response was due November 24, 2025, but they filed it on November 30 without requesting an extension. Defendants attributed the delay to a calendaring mistake, while Plaintiff argued that the untimely response violated the local rules and should be stricken.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Plaintiff filed a motion for sanctions on November 10, 2025. Defendants filed their response six days after the deadline established by Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(c), without seeking or obtaining an extension. Plaintiff moved to strike the late response, and the court denied that motion because Plaintiff failed to show prejudice.

OPINION

1 WO 2 3 4 5 6 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT 7 FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA 8 9 Robert G Furst, No. CV-21-01287-PHX-DLR 10 Plaintiff, ORDER 11 v. 12 Linda Mayne, et al., 13 Defendants. 14 15 16 On November 10, 2025, Plaintiff filed a motion for sanctions against Defendants 17 and their counsel. (Doc. 90.) Per Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(c), Defendants' 18 response brief was due by November 24, 2025.

Defendants, however, filed their response 19 six days later, on November 30, 2025, without having sought or obtained an extension of 20 the response deadline. Defendants' tardiness prompted Plaintiff to file a motion to strike 21 Defendants' untimely response brief. (Doc. 92.)

In response, Defendants argue that a 22 motion to strike is not a proper vehicle for raising the untimeliness issue, and that their 23 delay in filing their response brief was due to a calendaring mistake. (Doc. 95.)

In reply, 24 Plaintiff contends that his motion to strike is proper under Local Rule of Civil Procedure 25 7.2(m)(1), notes that Defendants never moved for an extension of their response deadline, 26 and argues that even if Defendants had so moved, they have not shown excusable neglect. 27 (Doc. 96.) 28 Plaintiff's motion is procedurally proper. Local Rule of Civil Procedure 7.2(m)(1) 1 states: 2 Unless made at trial, a motion to strike may be filed only if it is authorized by statute or rule, such as Federal Rules of Civil 3 Procedure 12(f), 26(g)(2) or 37(b)(2)(A)(iii), or if it seeks to strike any part of a filing or submission on the ground that it is 4 prohibited (or not authorized) by a statute, rule, or court order.

5 Plaintiff relies on the portion of LRCiv 7.2(m)(1) that permits a party to move to strike 6 "any part of a filing or submission on the ground that it is prohibited (or not authorized) by 7 a statute, rule, or court order." (See Doc. 96 at 1-2.)

Under this provision, "[a]ny document 8 filed with the Clerk of the Court that is not in compliance with the Local Rules may be 9 stricken," Aloe Vera of Am. Inc. v. United States, No. CV-99-01794-PHX-JAT, 2015 WL 10 4474285, at *2 (D. Ariz. July 21, 2015), and Plaintiff contends that Defendants' response 11 brief was filed out of compliance with the Local Rules because Defendants submitted it 12 after the expiration of the deadline set by LRCiv 7.2(c).

13 When ruling on a motion to strike, the Court first ascertains whether the filing at 14 issue may be stricken. Here, that means ascertaining whether Defendants' response brief 15 was filed out of compliance with LRCiv 7.2(c). If not, then the Court may not strike it. If 16 so, the then the Court may, but is not required to, strike it. See Martinez v. Alltran Financial 17 LP, No. CV-18-04815-PHX-DLR, 2019 WL 1777300, at *1 (D.

Ariz. Apr. 23, 2019). 18 Defendants' response brief was filed out of compliance with LRCiv 7.2(c) because 19 it was filed six days after the expiration of the fourteen-day response deadline, and 20 Defendants did not seek or obtain an extension of that deadline before filling their brief.¹ 21 1 Defendants contend that the Court should, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 6(b), accept their late filing because their failure to meet the deadline was the 22 result of excusable neglect—namely, a minor calendaring error.

(Doc. 95 at 2.) Had Defendants moved under Rule 6(b) for a retroactive extension of their response deadline, 23 the Court likely would have granted the request. But Defendants ignore the obvious—they never filed such a motion. Instead, Defendants unilaterally filed a tardy brief without 24 acknowledging that they missed the deadline or seeking permission from the Court to file an out-of-time brief.

Defendants only acknowledged their error and argued excusable 25 neglect after Plaintiff raised the untimeliness issue in his motion to strike. Better practice would have been for Defendants, upon realizing that they had missed their response 26 deadline, to have filed a Rule 6(b) motion for a retroactive extension of time and lodged therewith a copy of their proposed response brief to be filed (if appropriate) after a ruling 27 on their motion.

Even better practice would have been to ask Plaintiff to stipulate to a retroactive extension. By electing an ask-for-forgiveness-rather-than-permission approach, 28 Defendants spurred the instant briefing on whether to strike the untimely filing.

The needless expenditure of the parties' and the Court's time and resources could have been It therefore may be stricken. 2 "Whether to grant a motion to strike lies within the discretion of the district court." *Mills v.
