QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the appeal should be dismissed for want of prosecution when appellant failed to file an appellate brief after receiving an extension and notice that the appeal was subject to dismissal.

HOLDINGS

1. The appeal was dismissed for want of prosecution because appellant failed to file a brief after being granted an extension and receiving notice that the appeal was subject to dismissal.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Accordingly, we dismiss this appeal for want of prosecution.” (2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The appeal challenged the trial court's final judgment. Appellant did not file the required appellate brief by the original deadline or by the extended deadline set by the court, and did not otherwise communicate with the court.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The appeal was originally filed in the Second Court of Appeals and transferred to the Seventh Court of Appeals by the Texas Supreme Court under its docket equalization authority. Appellant's brief was due March 2, 2026; after an extension, the court notified appellant that the appeal would be subject to dismissal if a brief was not filed by April 16, 2026. Appellant filed no brief and had no further communication with the court, so the appeal was dismissed for want of prosecution.

DISPOSITION

dismissed
