QUESTIONS PRESENTED

- Whether a life sentence constitutes impermissibly indefinite imprisonment under article I, section 17 of the Florida Constitution.

HOLDINGS

1. A life sentence is not impermissible indefinite imprisonment under article I, section 17 of the Florida Constitution.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“A life sentence is not impermissible ‘indefinite imprisonment’ under the Florida Constitution.” (at 2)

“Any sentence, even one of a short duration, can potentially exceed a defendant's life span. The fact that the judicial system has no way of knowing how long the defendant will live and therefore cannot know how long the defendant will be incarcerated does not render a life sentence unconstitutionally indefinite.” (at 2)

“It is abundantly clear that the Legislature, by prescribing a sentence of life imprisonment, intends that the defendant remain in prison for the rest of his life. The term ‘life’ is sufficiently definite so that it can be understood and applied.” (at 2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The opinion contains no substantive factual narrative. The appeal concerns the constitutionality of a life sentence under the Florida Constitution, specifically whether a life sentence constitutes impermissibly indefinite imprisonment.
