QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the attorney's request for $16,356.37 in fees for representation before the district court was timely under 42 U.S.C. § 406(b).
2. Whether the requested fee complied with the statutory 25-percent limitation for court-stage representation.
3. Whether the requested § 406(b) fee was reasonable under Gisbrecht v. Barnhart.

HOLDINGS

1. A request for attorney fees under § 406(b) should be filed within a reasonable time after the Commissioner's decision awarding benefits, and this request was timely because it was filed shortly after the SSA issued its Notice of Award.
2. The requested § 406(b) fee was permissible because it did not exceed 25 percent of the claimant's past-due benefits, and the 25-percent cap applies to court-stage fees rather than aggregating court-stage and agency-stage fees.
3. The requested $16,356.37 fee was reasonable and could be paid from Gallegos's past-due benefits.
4. When counsel receives both EAJA fees and § 406(b) fees for the same representation, counsel must refund the smaller EAJA award to the claimant.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Courts should review fee arrangements “as an independent check, to assure that they yield reasonable results in particular cases.”” (II)

“The reasonableness determination is “based on the character of the representation and the results the representative achieved.”” (II)

“Within the 25 percent boundary, . . . the attorney for the successful claimant must show that the fee sought is reasonable for the services rendered.” (II)

“Thus, the Court’s independent review of the fee request finds the requested amount to be both appropriate and reasonable.” (III)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Gallegos received a fully favorable administrative decision after the federal court remanded his Social Security disability case. The SSA awarded him $167,651 in past-due benefits and withheld $41,912.75 for attorney fees. His attorney had already been awarded $9,200 for administrative-level work and sought $16,356.37 for work performed before the district court, based on 27.3 hours of attorney time.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The SSA denied Gallegos's applications for Disability Insurance Benefits and Supplemental Security Income, and an ALJ issued an unfavorable decision that the Appeals Council declined to review. Gallegos sought judicial review, after which the Commissioner moved for an unopposed sentence-four remand that the court granted. Following a fully favorable administrative decision and an award of $167,651 in past-due benefits, the court granted Gallegos's motion authorizing $16,356.37 in § 406(b) attorney fees and directed counsel to refund the previously awarded $6,973.90 EAJA fee.
