QUESTIONS PRESENTED

- Whether the Kansas Supreme Court should accept Edwards' voluntary surrender of her law license under Supreme Court Rule 230(b).
- What disciplinary and administrative consequences follow from accepting the voluntary surrender.

HOLDINGS

1. The court may accept Edwards' voluntary surrender under Supreme Court Rule 230(b), disbar her, revoke her license and privilege to practice law in Kansas, and direct that her name be stricken from the roll of licensed attorneys.
2. Any proceeding pending before the Kansas Board for Discipline of Attorneys against Edwards terminates on the date of the order under Rule 230(b)(1)(C), although the Disciplinary Administrator may direct an investigator to complete a pending investigation to preserve evidence.
3. The court assesses the proceeding's costs to Edwards and directs her to comply with Supreme Court Rule 231.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“The court grants that motion, accepts Edwards' voluntary surrender of her law license, disbars Edwards under Rule 230(b), and revokes Edwards' license and privilege to practice law in Kansas.” (at 1)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Carolyn Sue Edwards was admitted to practice law in Kansas on April 23, 1986. After the court suspended her license in December 2024 for professional-conduct violations, she submitted a request on December 5, 2025, to voluntarily surrender her law license. The Office of the Disciplinary Administrator moved to accept the surrender under Rule 230(b).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The court suspended Edwards' law license in December 2024 after finding violations of the Kansas Rules of Professional Conduct. Edwards then requested voluntary surrender of her license, and the Office of the Disciplinary Administrator moved under Supreme Court Rule 230(b) to accept the surrender. The court granted the motion, disbarred Edwards, revoked her license and privilege to practice law, and issued related disciplinary and administrative directives.
