QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether plaintiff established prima facie entitlement to summary judgment on liability under Labor Law § 240(1) by showing that defendant failed to provide adequate safety devices.
2. Whether plaintiff's repair work constituted mere routine maintenance outside the protections of the Labor Law.
3. Whether defendant raised a triable issue of fact as to plaintiff's status as the sole proximate cause of his injuries.
4. Whether plaintiff's alleged comparative negligence or conduct in touching a hot pipe defeated his Labor Law § 240(1) claim.
5. Whether defendant's arguments concerning Labor Law § 241(6) required reversal when summary judgment under Labor Law § 240(1) was properly granted.

HOLDINGS

1. Plaintiff established prima facie entitlement to summary judgment by showing that defendant failed to supply adequate safety devices to protect him from falling from the ladder.
2. Defendant failed to raise a triable issue of fact that plaintiff was engaged in mere routine maintenance; plaintiff's repair of a ceiling leak was work protected by the Labor Law.
3. Defendant failed to raise a triable issue of fact that plaintiff was the sole proximate cause of his injuries.
4. Comparative negligence is not a defense to a Labor Law § 240(1) claim.
5. Defendant's arguments concerning the Labor Law § 241(6) claim were academic because summary judgment on the Labor Law § 240(1) claim was properly granted.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Plaintiff established prima facie entitlement to summary judgment on his Labor Law § 240(1) claim by showing that defendant failed to supply him with safety devices adequate to protect him from falling”

“comparative negligence is not a defense to a Labor Law § 240(1) claim”

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Plaintiff was performing repair work at a construction site, including repairing a ceiling leak by cutting into the ceiling with a sheet-rock knife and an electric saw. While standing on an unsecured ladder, the ladder gave way and plaintiff fell to the ground. Defendant argued that plaintiff was engaged in routine maintenance, that he was the sole proximate cause of the accident, and that emergency-room records showed he caused the ladder to shake after touching a hot pipe.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Supreme Court, Bronx County, granted plaintiff's motion for partial summary judgment on liability under Labor Law §§ 240(1) and 241(6). The Appellate Division, First Department, unanimously affirmed the order.

affirmed
