QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the complaint stated a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against the Central Virginia Regional Jail, which is not a person subject to suit under the statute.
2. Whether the complaint stated plausible § 1983 claims against the remaining defendants when it failed to allege each defendant's personal involvement.
3. Whether dismissal under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b)(1) was appropriate after plaintiff failed to amend the deficient complaint.

HOLDINGS

1. A jail is not a person within the meaning of § 1983 and therefore cannot be liable under that statute.
2. A § 1983 complaint must allege facts showing each defendant's personal involvement in the asserted constitutional violation; the complaint failed to do so and therefore stated no plausible claim against the remaining defendants.
3. The court must dismiss a prisoner's complaint that fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted; dismissal was warranted because the original complaint remained deficient and plaintiff failed to file an amended complaint.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.”

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Ronnie Keith Brooking, proceeding pro se, filed a prisoner civil-rights complaint under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against the Central Virginia Regional Jail, the CVRJ Authority, CVRJ administrative staff, and three individual officers. The complaint did not identify what each defendant personally did to violate Brooking's rights. After the court identified these deficiencies and ordered an amended complaint, Brooking failed to file one within the prescribed period.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Plaintiff filed a § 1983 complaint against the Central Virginia Regional Jail, related entities and staff, and individual officers. The court advised him that the jail was not a person subject to suit under § 1983 and that the complaint failed to allege each defendant's personal involvement, then ordered him to file an amended complaint within 30 days. Plaintiff did not amend, and the court dismissed the action for failure to state a claim.

DISPOSITION

dismissed
