SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York dismissed Wallick Richardson’s pro se action against New York State Family Court administrative officers without prejudice for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. PRACTICE AREAS

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the federal district court could exercise subject matter jurisdiction over claims concerning the enforcement and validity of a state-court child-support order.
2. Whether the action should be dismissed without prejudice after plaintiff failed to respond to the court's jurisdictional order.

HOLDINGS

1. The domestic-relations abstention doctrine required the federal district court to abstain from exercising subject matter jurisdiction over plaintiff's claims because they concerned the enforcement and validity of a state-court child-support order and could be fully and fairly determined in state court.
2. The action was dismissed without prejudice for lack of subject matter jurisdiction after plaintiff failed to file the required submission explaining why federal jurisdiction should be exercised.

KEY QUOTATIONS

"Since Plaintiff's claims concern only the enforcement and validity of a state court's child support order, this case falls under the scope of the domestic-relations abstention doctrine" (at 3)

"to abstain from exercising subject matter jurisdiction over claims involving domestic relations issues when those claims can be fully and fairly determined in the state courts." (at 3)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Wallick Richardson challenged his child-support obligations and alleged civil-rights violations against four New York State Family Court administrative officers sued in their official capacities. His claims concerned the enforcement and validity of a state-court child-support order. After the court ordered him to explain why federal subject matter jurisdiction existed, he filed no further submission.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Plaintiff commenced the action on September 18, 2025. On October 21, 2025, the court concluded that the claims concerning enforcement and validity of a state-court child-support order fell within the domestic-relations abstention doctrine and allowed plaintiff until November 20, 2025, to explain why the case should not be dismissed. Plaintiff made no further filings, so the court dismissed the action without prejudice, directed entry of judgment and closure of the case, and denied in forma pauperis status for any appeal.

OPINION

-----x WALLICK RICHARDSON, Plaintiff, MEMORANDUM &
ORDER - against - 25-CV-5155 (PKC) (MMH) GABRIELLA F. RICHMAN, et al., Defendants. --

-----x PAMELA K. CHEN, United States District Judge:

On September 18, 2025, Plaintiff Wallick Richardson, proceeding pro se, commenced this action against four New York State Family Court administrative officers in their official capacity alleging violations of his civil rights and challenging his child support obligations.

(See Compl., Dkt. 1, at ECF1 at 50–52.) By Order dated October 21, 2025, the Court concluded that it lacks subject matter jurisdiction over his Complaint and ordered Plaintiff to file a submission on or before November 20, 2025, explaining why his claims should not be dismissed. (Mem. & Order, Dkt. 5, at 1.) It explained that “[s]ince Plaintiff’s claims concern only the enforcement and validity of a state court’s child support order, this case falls under the scope of the domestic-relations abstention doctrine,” which in turn directs federal district courts “to abstain from exercising subject matter jurisdiction over claims involving domestic relations issues when those claims can be fully and fairly determined in the state courts.” (See id. at 3 (first citing Am.

Airlines, Inc. v. Block, 905 F.2d 12, 14 (2d Cir. 1990); then citing Deem v. DiMella-Deem, 941 F.3d 618, 621 (2d Cir. 2019); then citing Legister v. Radowitz, No. 20-CV-9330 (LLS), 2020 WL 7405672, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2020); and then citing Myers v. Sara Lee Corp., No. 08-CV-1421 (KAM), 2009 WL 10706711, at *10 (E.D.N.Y.

Apr. 13, 2009)).) The Order thus stated that if Plaintiff failed to file a submission explaining why this Court should exercise subject matter jurisdiction over his claims, the Court would dismiss this action without prejudice and without providing Plaintiff further opportunity to be heard. (Id.)

The Court has not received any filings from Plaintiff since. Accordingly, the action is dismissed without prejudice for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Clerk of Court is respectfully directed to enter judgment and close this case.

The Clerk of Court is also respectfully requested to mail a copy of this Order to Plaintiff and to note the mailing on the docket. Although Plaintiff has paid the filing fee to initiate this action, the Court certifies pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(3) that any appeal from this Order would not be taken in good faith and, therefore, denies Plaintiff in forma pauperis status for the purpose of an appeal.

See Coppedge v. United States, 369 U.S. 438, 444–45 (1962). SO ORDERED. /s/ Pamela K. Chen
