

COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE NINTH DISTRICT OF TEXAS AT BEAUMONT

In re Commitment of Gerald Wilson

No. 09-12-00408-CV · No. No. 09-12-00408-CV · Decided August 15, 2013

SUMMARY

The Ninth District Court of Appeals of Texas held that it lacked appellate jurisdiction to review a trial court order changing the entity responsible for approving Gerald Wilson's required residence in a sexually-violent-predator proceeding. The court also concluded that Wilson had not demonstrated entitlement to mandamus relief and dismissed the appeal.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the court of appeals had appellate jurisdiction to review the trial court's order changing the entity responsible for approving Wilson's residence.
2. Whether Wilson demonstrated entitlement to mandamus relief concerning the issues raised in his brief.

HOLDINGS

1. The trial court's order changing the entity that approves where Wilson is required to reside is not appealable, so the court of appeals lacked appellate jurisdiction to review it.
2. Wilson did not demonstrate that he was entitled to mandamus relief.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“We conclude that the trial court’s order is not appealable, and we also conclude that mandamus relief on the issues Wilson raises is not warranted.”

“Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal for lack of jurisdiction.”

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Wilson was subject to a sexually-violent-predator commitment proceeding. The trial court entered an order changing the entity that approved where Wilson was required to reside, and Wilson challenged that order on appeal and through a request for mandamus relief.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The 435th District Court of Montgomery County entered the challenged order on July 26, 2012. Wilson appealed to the Ninth District Court of Appeals and raised issues that he also asserted warranted mandamus relief; the appellate court dismissed the appeal for lack of jurisdiction and denied mandamus relief.

DISPOSITION

dismissed
