HVI Cat Canyon, Inc. v. GLR LLC, GRL LLC, and Randeep S.
Grewal

HVI Cat Canyon · No. 9:25-ap-01038-MB; bankruptcy case no. 9:19-bk-11573-MB · Decided April 30, 2026

SUMMARY

The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Central District of California grants Plaintiffs' motion to remand a removed California state-court action. The court holds that removal of the First Cause of Action was untimely under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9027(c)(3), while removal of the newly added Second Cause of Action was timely. The court also concludes that the contractual and quasi-contractual claims do not arise under or arise in the Bankruptcy Code, and addresses equitable remand considerations.

Adv. Proc. No.: 9:25-ap-01038-MB 15

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR

16 GLR LLC, a Delaware limited liability REMAND company; GRL LLC, a Delaware limited 17 liability company; and RANDEEP S. GREWAL, an individual, 18 Plaintiffs, 19 20 vs. 21 UBS
AG, a Swiss Corporation; and Does 1-10, 22 inclusive, 23 Defendant. 24 25 26 27 1 On October
8, 2025, Defendant UBS AG ("Defendant") filed its Notice of Removal to 2 Bankruptcy Court
("Removal Notice"), removing a civil action from the Superior Court for the 3 State of California ("Superior Court") and resulting in the opening of this adversary proceeding. 4 Adv. Dkt. 1.1 On October 9, 2025, the Court entered its Notice of Status Conference and Order to 5 Show Cause re: Remand in a Removed Proceeding ("OSC"). Adv. Dkt. 3. 6 On November 7, 2025, Plaintiffs GLR LLC ("GLR"), GRL LLC ("GRL"), and Randeeep S. 7 Grewal ("Grewal") (collectively, "Plaintiffs") filed their motion to remand the civil action to the 8 Superior Court ("Motion"). Adv. Dkt. 17. After several hearings, and multiple rounds of briefing, 9 the Motion is ripe for decision.

10 I. BACKGROUND

11 A. Procedural Background re: Removal and Remand 12 The Removal Notice removed the Superior Court lawsuit styled GLR LLC, a Delaware 13 limited liability company; GRL LLC, a Delaware limited liability company; and RANDEEP S. 14 GREWAL, an individual, vs. UBS AG, a Swiss Corporation; and Does 1-10, inclusive, Case No. 15 24STCV13821 (the "Civil Action"). 16 This is the second time the Civil Action has been removed to this Court. Defendant 17 originally removed the Civil Action on June 20, 2024. See Adv. Proc. No. 9:24-ap-01020 ("Prior 18 Removal"), Dkt. 1. On January 31, 2025, after extensive argument and briefing, the Court entered 19 its order remanding the Civil Action to the Superior Court on equitable grounds, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. § 1452(b) ("Original Remand Order"). Prior Removal, Adv. Dkt. 87. Defendant thereafter 21 filed a motion for reconsideration and clarification ("Reconsideration Motion"). Prior Removal, 22 Adv. Dkt. 89. 23 After additional briefing and argument, the Court entered its order granting in part and 24 denying in part the Reconsideration Motion. Prior Removal, Adv. Dkt. No. 104. In accordance 25 26 1 Unless otherwise indicated, (i) references to "Adv. Dkt." refer to the docket maintained in the 27 above-captioned adversary proceeding, and (ii) references to "Case Dkt." refer to the docket maintained in the above-captioned bankruptcy case. References to the "Bankruptcy Code" refer to 1 with that order, the Court amended the Original Remand Order ("Amended Remand Order"), but 2 the ultimate result did not change. Prior Removal, Adv. Dkt. No. 105. Pursuant to the Amended 3 Remand Order, the Court remanded the Civil Action to the Superior Court. 4 Following remand, Plaintiffs amended their original complaint in the Civil Action 5 ("Original Complaint") by filing their Amended Complaint For (1) Breach of Contract; and (2) 6 Money Had and Received ("Amended Complaint"). See Adv. Dkt. 15-20 at 2-21. Defendant 7 contends that Plaintiffs' amendments fundamentally altered the Civil Action in such a way as to 8 justify removal a second time. Based on these amendments, Defendant believes that there is an 9 even stronger case for this Court to retain and adjudicate the Civil Action. Plaintiffs disagree. 10 Although the Court understands why Defendant believed that changes to the Original 11 Complaint might change the Court's calculus regarding whether to retain the Civil Action, the 12 Court ultimately is not persuaded. As explained below, the Court reaches the same conclusion as it 13 did previously: the Civil Action is most appropriately adjudicated in the Superior Court and should 14 be remanded on equitable grounds. 15 B. The Civil Action and the Bankruptcy Case 16 Plaintiffs initiated the Civil Action to enforce certain contracts between the parties, i.e., a 17 certain Waiver, Release and Discharge Agreement dated May 20, 2016 ("Waiver Agreement"), and 18 a certain Release Agreement of the same date ("Grewal Release") (collectively, the "Waiver 19 Agreements"). Prior Removal, Adv. Dkt. 1 at 7 (Original Complaint). The disputes allegedly trace 20 their origin to a certain Volumetric Production Payment Agreement (the "VPP") entered into in 21 2007, to which Defendant, HVI Cat Canyon, Inc. (the "Debtor") and a third-party entity, Rincon 22 Island Limited Partnership, are parties. The Waiver Agreements allegedly were entered into in 23 connection with a restructuring of the VPP in 2016. 24 The Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 on July 25, 2019, in the 25 Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. The chapter 11 case was then transferred 26 to the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, and thereafter transferred to this Court. 27 On October 16, 2019, the Court entered an order appointing a chapter 11 trustee in the case. Case

1 Dkt. 418. On December 17, 2020, the Court entered an order converting the case to chapter 7.

2 Case Dkt. 1531. The United States Trustee thereafter appointed McConnell chapter 7 trustee. Case

3 Dkt. 1537.

4 On December 10, 2020, the Court entered an order approving a stipulation between 5 McConnell, UBS AG, London Branch and UBS AG, Stamford Branch which, among other things, 6 created a litigation fund (the "Litigation Fund") for "prosecuting litigation claims against insiders." 7 Case Dkt. 1504; see also Case Dkt. 1411 at 19-24 (stipulation). The Litigation Fund was to be 8 created with proceeds from the sale of certain estate assets and an additional contribution from 9 these UBS entities. Case Dkt. 1411 at 20. 10 On July 23, 2021, McConnell commenced an adversary proceeding against Grewal, GLR, 11 GRL and various other defendants (the "Trustee Litigation"). Case No. 9:21-ap-01025 Adv. Dkt. 1. 12 The complaint in the Trustee Litigation asserts a variety of causes of action, including breach of 13 fiduciary duty, aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duty, avoidance and recovery of fraudulent 14 transfers, aiding and abetting fraudulent transfers, avoidance and recovery of preferential transfers, 15 negligence, breach of contract, unjust enrichment, declaratory relief and equitable relief. Id. The 16 Trustee Litigation remains pending.² 17 On May 3, 2022, Mr. McConnell filed a motion requesting approval of additional litigation 18 financing of $1.5 million, plus subsequent advances up to $4 million, from UBS AG Stamford 19 Branch (the "Litigation Financing"). Case Dkt. 1794. On June 17, 2022, the Court entered its 20 order approving the Litigation Financing. Case Dkt. 1873. 21 The Original Complaint contained five causes of action. Four sought contractual damages 22 and the fifth sought related declaratory relief. The gravamen of these claims was that Defendant 23 breached the Waiver Agreements by creating the Litigation Fund, providing the Litigation 24 Financing, enabling the Trustee to prosecute the Trustee Litigation, withholding its consent to a 25 26 27 2 On or about March 14, 2023, McConnell resigned as trustee, and Brad D. Krasnoff was appointed successor trustee on March 16, 2023. Case Dkt. 1983, 1988. Thereafter, Krasnoff became the 1 settlement that might have resolved certain claims against Plaintiffs, and obtaining a share of the 2 potential proceeds from the Trustee Litigation. 3 The Amended Complaint eliminates all but the first cause of action under the Original 4 Complaint and adds a new one. The first cause of action under the Amended Complaint ("First 5 Cause of Action") alleges Defendant breached the Waiver Agreement for all the reasons alleged in 6 the Original Complaint (i.e., relating to the Litigation Fund, Litigation Financing, and Trustee 7 Litigation). Compare Adv. Dkt. 15-20 at 17-18 with Prior Removal, Adv. Dkt. 1-1 at 20-21. 8 The second and new cause of action under the Amended Complaint ("Second Cause of 9 Action") alleges a common count for "money had and received" based on a certain subordination 10 agreement ("Subordination Agreement") entered into by GLR and Defendant in 2016, in 11 connection with Waiver Agreements and related transactions. Adv. Dkt. 1-1 at 8, 18-20. Pursuant 12 to the Subordination Agreement, GLR agreed to subordinate its pre-existing lien in assets of the 13 Debtor to a $100 million senior secured lien of Defendant. 14 More specifically, the Second Cause of Action alleges that GLR executed the Subordination 15 Agreement in reasonable reliance on the promises made by Defendant under the Waiver Agreement 16 not to pursue or participate in litigation against Plaintiffs with respect to the claims released under 17 that agreement. Adv. Dkt. 1-1 at 18. The Second Cause of Action further alleges that Defendant 18 denied Plaintiffs the consideration they bargained for (in exchange for executing the Subordination 19 Agreement), by subsequently breaching the Waiver Agreement (as alleged in the First Cause of 20 Action). Id. Alternatively, the Second Cause of Action alleges that GLR's execution of the 21 Subordination Agreement was procured through mistake, fraud, coercion, breach of duty or other 22 inequitable conduct. Adv. Dkt. 1-1 at 19. 23 Based on these allegations, the Second Cause of Action seeks recovery from Defendant for 24 the funds it received from the Debtor's bankruptcy estate following the sale of substantially all of 25 the Debtor's assets. Adv. Dkt. 1-1 at 20-21. The Second Cause of Action contends the distribution 26 of sale proceeds to Defendant unjustly enriched Defendant at the expense of GLR. On this basis, 27 Plaintiffs seek the imposition of a constructive trust on the funds received by Defendant and

1 II. ANALYSIS

2 A. Timeliness 3 As a threshold matter, Plaintiffs argue that the Civil Action should be remanded to the 4 Superior Court because it was not timely removed. Defendant disagrees. 5 A party to any claim or cause of action that is subject to bankruptcy jurisdiction may 6 remove that claim or cause of action to the district court for the district in which it is pending. 28 7 U.S.C. § 1452(a). Each district court, in turn, may refer proceedings subject to bankruptcy 8 jurisdiction to the bankruptcy judges for the district. 28 U.S.C. § 157(a). Federal Rule of 9 Bankruptcy Procedure 9027 implements the removal authorized by section 1452(a). In relevant 10 part, Rule 9027 provides: 11 If a claim or cause of action is asserted in another court after the bankruptcy 12 case was commenced, a party filing a notice of removal must do so within the 13 shorter of these periods: 14 (A) 30 days after receiving (by service or otherwise) the initial pleading 15 setting forth the claim or cause of action sought to be removed; or 16 (B) 30 days after receiving the summons if the initial pleading has been filed 17 but not served with the summons. 18 Fed. R.

Bankr. P. 9027(c)(3). 19 Plaintiffs acknowledge that the Removal Notice was filed by Defendant within 30 days of 20 Defendant receiving the Amended Complaint, but argue the Removal Notice nevertheless was 21 untimely for two reasons. 22 First, Plaintiffs contend the Removal Notice is untimely as to the First Cause of Action 23 because that claim was first asserted in the Original Complaint, in 2024 and the time to remove it 24 has expired. Second, Plaintiffs contend the Removal Notice is untimely as to the Second Cause of 25 Action because it is based on the same nucleus of operative facts as the Original Complaint. In 26 other words, Plaintiffs argue that the Second Cause of Action is part and parcel of the Original 27 Complaint, which was filed in 2024 and cannot now be removed. 1 Conversely, Defendant argues that its Removal Notice is timely for two reasons. First, 2 Defendant argues that "as a technical matter, the Civil Action was in fact removed by Defendant 3 within 17 days of its initial commencement. That this Court remanded the action as it was then 4 configured does not change that fact." Adv. Dkt. 22 at 24. Second, Defendant argues that the 5 Amended Complaint is "materially changed" and therefore its filing of the Removal Notice within 6 30 days of receipt of the Amended Complaint is timely. Id. 7 Neither side is entirely correct. The plain language of Rule 9027(c)(3) indicates that 8 timeliness is determined with respect to each "claim or cause of action" that is removed. It does not 9 instruct the Court to decide whether the entirety of a complaint is either timely or untimely. When 10 framed in this manner, the Court reaches different results for each of the two claims in the 11 Amended Complaint. 12 The First Cause of Action in the Amended Complaint is virtually identical to the first cause 13 of action in the Original Complaint. Although the removal of that claim was timely in June 2024, 14 the latest removal of the claim is not. The Removal Notice at issue here was filed more than one 15 year after Defendant received the Original Complaint, which constitutes the "initial pleading setting 16 forth the claim or cause of action sought to be removed." Accordingly, the time to remove the First 17 Cause of Action has long since passed. 18 Defendant's contention that it "technically" complied with Rule 9027(c)(3) because of its 19 prior removal is unpersuasive. In essence, Defendant is arguing that because its removal of the 20 First Cause of Action was timely back in 2024, its subsequent removal of that claim also must be 21 timely. As a matter of logic and common sense, this cannot be correct. Taken to its logical 22 extreme, this position would render timely any subsequent removal of a claim timely, no matter 23 how many times it has been removed and remanded. There is no indication in the text of the Rule 24 that the drafters intended this untenable result. 25 Defendant's citation to Royal Canin U.S.A., Inc. v. Wullschlegel, 604 U.S. 22 (2025) is 26 likewise unavailing. Defendant cites Royal Canin for the unremarkable proposition that an 27 amended complaint becomes the operative complaint for purposes of determining whether a court

1 Rule 9027(c) or consider whether a removal was timely. Royal Canin held that a plaintiff's post-
2 removal amendment of a complaint to delete all federal claims deprived the district court of 3 supplemental jurisdiction over the remaining state law claims. That case did not involve, and 4 provides no guidance on the problem presented here: the successive removal of a cause of action 5

previously removed and remanded. 6 Furthermore, the Court rejects Defendant's suggestion that the First Cause of Action in the 7 Amended Complaint is materially different than the first cause of action alleged in the Original 8 Complaint. Defendant relies on the addition of a series of factual allegations regarding Defendant's 9 conduct during the bankruptcy case, and the addition of the Second Cause of Action, to argue that 10 Plaintiffs "have created a different dispute than was previously before this Court" and "effectively 11 create[ed] a new lawsuit." Adv. Dkt. 22 at 24-26. The relevant question is not whether the Civil 12 Action or operative complaint, as a whole, is sufficiently different than it was when it was 13 previously remanded. The relevant question is whether the Amended Complaint contains any 14 claim that was first asserted in the Original Complaint and therefore subject to a removal deadline 15 that has since expired. The Court concludes the First Cause of Action is just such a claim. 16 In contrast, the Court concludes that the Second Cause of Action is a new claim. Although 17 the claim relies, in part, on background facts that were first alleged in the Original Complaint, the 18 Second Cause of Action is premised on the contention that Defendant has unfairly benefitted from 19 the Subordination Agreement. The Original Complaint did not even mention the Subordination 20 Agreement, let alone argue that (i) Defendant prevented Plaintiffs from realizing the consideration 21 for which they agreed to execute the Subordination Agreement, or (ii) Plaintiffs were induced to 22 enter the Subordination Agreement through mistake, fraud, coercion, breach of duty or other 23 inequitable conduct. These allegations constitute an entirely new cause of action, which appears 24 for the first time in the Amended Complaint. Accordingly, the 30-day period to remove this claim 25 was not triggered until receipt of the Amended Complaint. 26 Accordingly, the Court finds that removal of the First Cause of Action was untimely under 27 Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9027(c)(3). Independent of the equitable remand analysis 1 Court finds that removal of the Second Cause of Action was timely under Rule 9027(c)(3) and that 2 remand on this ground is not appropriate. 3

B. Jurisdiction 4 The parties have dedicated a substantial portion of their briefing and oral argument to the 5 question of jurisdiction. Jurisdiction is significant here for two reasons. First, if the Court has no 6 jurisdiction over a claim, the Court cannot retain it and must remand it. Second, assuming the 7 Court has jurisdiction, the nature of the Court's jurisdiction is relevant to its equitable analysis of 8 whether to retain or remand a claim. See Section II.C. below. 9

Bankruptcy jurisdiction is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b). That statute grants this Court, 10 by reference from the District Court, "original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings 11 arising under [the Bankruptcy Code], or arising in or related to cases under [the Bankruptcy 12 Code]." 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b); 28 U.S.C. § 157(a); General Order No. 13-05 (C.D. Cal. July 1, 13 2013). 14 "A matter 'arises under' the Bankruptcy Code if its existence depends on a substantive 15 provision of bankruptcy law, that is, if it involves a cause of action created or determined by a 16 statutory provision of the Bankruptcy Code." In re Ray, 624 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 2010). A 17 proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to 18 the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly rooted in the Bankruptcy Code." Id. An action is "related to" a bankruptcy case if the outcome of the proceeding could conceivably alter the debtor's rights, liabilities, options or freedom of action (either positively or negatively) in such a way as to impact the administration of the bankruptcy estate. Fietz v. Great W. Sav. (In re Fietz), 852 F.2d 455, 457 (9th Cir. 1988) (adopting Pacor, Inc. v. Higgins, 743 F.2d 984, 994 (3d Cir. 1984)). Congress further divided bankruptcy court jurisdiction into "core proceedings" and "non-core" proceedings. See Executive Benefits Ins. Agency v. Arkison, 573 U.S. 25, 33 (2014). Proceedings that "arise under" the Bankruptcy Code or "arise in" a case under the Bankruptcy are considered "core." Id. Those that are merely "related to" a Bankruptcy Case are considered "non-core." Id.

1. "Arising Under" Defendant asserts that the Court has "arising under" jurisdiction over both counts in the Amended Complaint, although its arguments focus principally on the Second Cause of Action.³ Defendant contends that the Second Cause of Action is a dispute arising under the Bankruptcy Code because "[s]tripped of its essentials" it "asks a non-bankruptcy court to reclassify and disgorge distributions this Court authorized under sections 363, 364, 507(b) and 726, and to reorder superpriority and priming rights granted by this Court's Cash Collateral, Sale, and Financing orders." Adv. Dkt. 22 at 14. The Court respectfully disagrees.

11 The Second Cause of Action seeks the recovery of money against Defendant based on an alleged failure of consideration supporting the Subordination Agreement or, alternatively, mistake, fraud, coercion, breach of duty or other inequitable conduct. This is a contractual or quasi-contractual claim arising under state law, not a claim arising under the Bankruptcy Code. Does the claim refer in some measure to events that occurred in the bankruptcy case? Yes. Plaintiffs allege that Defendant's conduct in the bankruptcy case breached the Waiver Agreement, and denied Plaintiffs the benefit of their bargain under the Subordination Agreement. Further, Plaintiffs allege that the measure of damages or unjust enrichment is the amount that was distributed to Defendant pursuant to orders of this Court, during this case. But the complaint does not allege that any order of the Court was incorrect or that any distribution authorized by the Court should be invalidated.

21 Defendant attempts to bolster its argument by reference to the law governing a cause of action for "money had and received" under California law. Adv. Dkt. 22 at 20.

23 A common count for money had and received is not a specific cause of action; rather, it is a simplified form of pleading normally used to aver the existence of various forms of monetary indebtedness. Although such an action is one at law, it is governed by principles of equity.

27 1 A cause of action for money had and received is stated if it is alleged that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum for money had and received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff. The claim is viable wherever one person has received money which belongs to another, and which in equity and good conscience should be paid over to the latter. The plaintiff must prove that the defendant received money intended to be used for the benefit of the plaintiff, that

7 the money was not used for the plaintiff's benefit, and that the defendant has not 8 given the money to the plaintiff. 9 Camden Sys., LLC v. 409 N. Camden, LLC, 103 Cal. App. 5th 1068, 1082 (2024) (citations and 10 internal quotations omitted). Defendant argues that the only way Plaintiffs could conceivably make 11 out a case under these legal standards is to ignore the import of this Court's final orders approving 12 the financing arrangements in the case, granting Defendant certain liens and priorities of 13 distribution with respect to estate assets, as well as the Bankruptcy Code provisions that animate 14 those orders. Adv. Dkt. 22 at 20. 15 What Defendant effectively is arguing is that it has defenses to the Second Cause of Action 16 based on the final orders of this Court, provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and federal principles of 17 preclusion. It may.⁴ But the possibility of these defenses is insufficient to transform a state law 18 contractual or quasi-contractual claim between creditors into a claim "arising under" the 19 Bankruptcy Code. 20 The Supreme Court has "long held that 'the presence or absence of federal question 21 jurisdiction is governed by the "well-pleaded complaint rule," which provides that federal 22 jurisdiction exists only when a federal question is presented on the face of the plaintiff's properly 23 pleaded complaint.'" Rivet v. Regions Bank of Louisiana, 522 U.S. 470, 475 (1998) (quoting 24 Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987)). "A defense is not part of a plaintiff's 25 properly pleaded statement of his or her claim." Id. (citations omitted). "Thus, 'a case may not be 26 27 4 The Court has repeatedly emphasized that it is not making any decision, or even expressing an opinion, on the merits of any such defenses. That continues to be true. The assessment of any such 1 removed to federal court on the basis of a federal defense, ... even if the defense is anticipated in 2 the plaintiff's complaint and even if the both parties admit that the defense is the only question truly 3 at issue in the case.'" Id. (citing Franchise Tax Bd. of Cal. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust 4 for Southern Cal., 463 U.S. 1, 14 (1983)). 5 The Amended Complaint pleads contractual and quasi-contractual claims under California 6 law against Defendant. Those claims refer to and depend on events that occurred during the 7 bankruptcy case, but are not based on any provision of the Bankruptcy Code—implicitly or 8 explicitly. Instead, the Amended Complaint seeks recovery under California law based on the 9 contractual or quasi-contractual relations between the parties. That Defendant intends to assert 10 preclusion and other defenses based on federal law is legally irrelevant. See, e.g., id. at 477-78 11 (rejecting removal of civil matter based on anticipated defense of claim preclusion under federal 12 law). This Court does not have "arising under" jurisdiction over the Amended Complaint and 13 removal on that basis is not justified. 14 2. "Arising In" 15 For the same reasons, the Court rejects Defendant's argument that the Court has "arising in" 16 jurisdiction. Defendant argues that the Amended Complaint "puts at issue multiple key decisions 17 of this Court: the Cash Collateral Order, the Sale Order, and the Financing Orders," all of which 18 were entered in this bankruptcy case. Adv. Dkt. 22 at 16. Defendant contends that the claims in 19 the Amended Complaint are "inextricably tied" to the bankruptcy case, "would not exist outside of 20 it," and involve "questions concerning the proper administration of the estate." Id. But the Court is 21 not persuaded. 22 First, the argument misconstrues the test for "arising in" jurisdiction. The question is not 23 whether the proceeding would not exist but for a historical or circumstantial connection to a 24 bankruptcy case. The question is whether the "proceeding [by] its nature, could arise only in the 25 context of a bankruptcy case." In re Ray, 624 F.3d at 1130 (emphasis added).⁵ Although the 26 27 5 See also id. at 1131 ("A proceeding 'arises in' a case under the Bankruptcy Code if it is an administrative matter unique to the bankruptcy process that has no independent existence outside of 1 events of the bankruptcy case provide part of the factual predicate for the Amended Complaint, 2 what Plaintiffs complain of is Defendant's alleged contractual and quasi-contractual breach. Based 3 on that breach, Plaintiffs argue they are entitled to damages and/or restitution. Although the 4 measure of their entitlements is alleged by reference to the amounts Defendant has or will receive 5 through the bankruptcy case, that is not essential to the nature of the claims. These claims are of 6 the nature that could be (and commonly are) asserted outside of bankruptcy. 7 Defendant's citation to Maitland v. Mitchell (In re Harris Pine Mills), 44 F.3d 14331, 1435- 8 38 (9th Cir. 1995) and Honigman, Miller, Schwartz & Cohn v. Weitzman (In re DeLorean Motor 9 Co.), 155 B.R. 521, 525 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1993) do not advance its position. These courts found 10 "arising in" jurisdiction over claims against a bankruptcy trustee from the trustee's conduct in 11 administering estate assets. Those are claims of a nature that can only exist in a bankruptcy case. 12 In contrast, the claims asserted in the Amended Complaint are contractual and quasi-contractual 13 inter-creditor disputes based on agreements entered into years before the bankruptcy case. 14 It is undeniable that the Debtor filed bankruptcy and its assets were liquidated here. These 15 disputes, however, could have arisen following the liquidation of the Debtor's assets in some other 16 proceeding or by some other means. See, e.g., In re Ray, 624 F.3d at 1131 (claim for breach of 17 contract arising out of sellers' purported failure to comply with the right of first refusal in 18 bankruptcy sale did not "by its nature ... arise only in the context of a bankruptcy case.") Moreover, 19 irrespective of Defendant's bankruptcy-based defenses, it is the nature of the claims that defines 20 jurisdiction. Id. (finding no core jurisdiction notwithstanding defendants' assertion of claim 21 preclusion under federal law). In sum, the nature of the claims presented here is not peculiar to 22 bankruptcy. 23 Second, Defendant's argument mischaracterizes the claims as a "collateral attack" on orders 24 entered in bankruptcy case. The Amended Complaint describes orders of the Court and, in some 25 measure, relies on transactions that were implemented pursuant to those orders. But the Amended 26 27 bankruptcy and could not be brought in another forum, but whose cause of action is not expressly 1 Complaint does not challenge the validity or enforceability of the Court's orders, and none of those 2 orders opined on any theories of liability asserted in, or any defenses asserted to, the Amended 3 Complaint. 4 During the bankruptcy case, Plaintiffs did raise an objection to approval of the Litigation 5 Financing based on the Waiver Agreements and the Court did approve the financing 6 notwithstanding the objection. See generally Case Dkt. 1880 at 22:7-39:18. But the Court 7 expressly declined to rule on the merits of Plaintiffs' objection, noting that approval of the 8 financing under the Bankruptcy Code and any contractual consequences under the Waiver 9 Agreements were separate issues. Id. at 28:23-29:6. 10 The Court made it clear that it was only deciding the question of whether the financing 11 should be approved under the Bankruptcy Code: 12 In the same way that I've found it unnecessary to rule on the merits of the objecting 13 creditors' contention [that] the financing would constitute a breach of UBS's 14 contractual obligations, I find it unnecessary to rule on whether they are equitably 15 estopped from making such an argument or bringing such a claim. [The issue] 16 presented here is simply whether to approve of post-[petition] financing under 17 Section 364.

18 Case Dkt. 1880 at 30:22-31:4.6 Under these circumstances, the Court is not persuaded that 19 adjudication of the Amended Complaint in another forum threatens the validity of the financing, 20 21 22 23 6 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60(a), "[t]he court may correct a clerical mistake or a 24 mistake arising from oversight or omission whenever one is found in a judgment, order, or other part of the record." Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a) made applicable by Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9024(a). The "basic 25 distinction between 'clerical mistakes' and mistakes that cannot be corrected pursuant to Rule 60(a) is that the former consist of 'blunders in execution' whereas the latter consist of instances where the 26 court changes its mind." Tattersalls, Ltd. v. Dehaven, 745 F.3d 1294, 1297 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting 27 Blanton v. Anzalone, 813 F.2d 1574, 1577 n.2 (9th Cir. 1987)). The Court has compared the official transcript of the hearing at Case Dkt. 1880 with the Court's official audio file recording and made 1 deprives any party of the protections accorded them under the financing, or threatens the fair and 2 efficient administration of this chapter 7 case.7 3 Moreover, the Court does not find persuasive the decisions cited by Defendant in which 4 courts found arising in jurisdiction: In re J.S. Kalama, LLC, No. BK 3:20-BK-41495-MJH, 2025 5 WL 1078841 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. Apr. 9, 2025) and Delaware Tr. Co. v. Wilmington Tr., N.A., 534 6 B.R. 500, 513 (S.D.N.Y. 2015). The dispute in Kalama centered on a bankruptcy court-approved 7 settlement agreement regarding the distribution of estate assets that had not yet been distributed. 8 Id. *3, *7-*8. Here, there is no dispute over the meaning of any bankruptcy court-approved 9 settlement agreement or order distributing assets of the estate. Plaintiffs assert under state law that 10 Defendant is liable for a contractual or quasi-contractual breach and that the measure of its 11 damages are certain funds Defendant has received (or will receive) from the estate. 12 Likewise, in Delaware Tr. Co., the dispute was over application of an intercreditor 13 agreement to the allocation of adequate protection payments being made during the bankruptcy 14 case in connection with the debtor's use of cash collateral. Id. at 513. Not surprisingly, the court 15 concluded the dispute would not exist outside of bankruptcy and fell squarely within the scope of 16 "arising in" jurisdiction. Id. at 513-16. Again, there is no dispute here regarding the distribution of 17 estate assets pursuant to bankruptcy law, any order of this Court, or any agreement approved by 18 this Court. The Amended Complaint does not interfere with the administration of the case, the 19 adjudication of any entitlements from the estate, or the distribution of any assets by the estate. It 20 simply asserts claims for damages and/or restitution against Defendant. 21 Finally, the Court is not persuaded by Defendant's related argument that there is "arising in" 22 jurisdiction because the Amended Complaint would require the interpretation of various orders of 23 this Court. It is undeniable that this Court has jurisdiction to interpret and enforce its orders when 24 25 7 Again, the Court reiterates that neither the foregoing statement or anything else in this Order is intended to express an opinion on the merits of the claims alleged in the Amended Complaint or 26 any potential defense that UBS may assert, including defenses based on federal principles of issue 27 preclusion, claim preclusion, equitable estoppel and judicial estoppel. These are for the tribunal that ultimately hears the Amended Complaint to assess. The Court has made no determination of 1 it retains jurisdiction to do so. See Travelers Indem. Co. v. Bailey, 557 U.S. 137, 151 (2009) 2 (concluding bankruptcy court had jurisdiction to enter an order clarifying a prior order entered in 3 the case). That does not answer, however, the question of which form of original jurisdiction exists 4 (if it all) when a civil action is removed from state court. 5 The kind of jurisdiction a bankruptcy court invokes to interpret and enforce its orders is a 6 form of ancillary jurisdiction. See In re Ray, 624 F.3d at 1135. The United States Supreme Court 7 has instructed, however, that the judge-made doctrine of ancillary jurisdiction is inadequate to 8 justify removal of a state court proceeding to federal court. Syngenta Crop Prot., Inc. v. Henson, 9 537 U.S. 28, 34 (2002) ("Removal is governed by statute, and invocation of ancillary jurisdiction, 10 like invocation of the All Writs Act, does not dispense with the need for compliance with statutory 11 requirements.") 12 As we explained in Peacock, ... a "court must have jurisdiction over a case or 13 controversy before it may assert jurisdiction over ancillary claims." 516 U.S., at 355, 14 116 S.Ct. 862. Ancillary jurisdiction . . . cannot provide the original jurisdiction that 15 petitioners must show in order to qualify for removal under § 1441.

16 Id. at 34.

17 In this case, the matter was removed under 28 U.S.C. § 1452, rather than § 1441, but the 18 principle is the same. A party removing a matter from state court must demonstrate a source of 19 original jurisdiction under the applicable statute in order to justify removal. Even if the Court 20 accepts as true the contention that the Amended Complaint will require interpretation of orders it 21 entered during the bankruptcy case, that fact alone does not establish original jurisdiction under 22 either form "core" jurisdiction enumerated in 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b). For the reasons stated above, 23 Defendant has failed to demonstrate that the Civil Action is a matter "arising under" title 11 or 24 "arising in" a case under title 11. That a court may have to read, understand or even interpret the 25 orders entered in this case is inadequate to persuade the Court otherwise. 26 3. "Related To" 27 In the Amended Remand Order dealing with removal of the Original Complaint, the Court 1 Court reasoned that such a ruling was unnecessary because, even assuming such jurisdiction, the 2 Court determined it would remand the matter on equitable grounds under 28 U.S.C. § 1452(b). 3 Little has changed since the Prior Removal. This time around, however, the Court believes the 4 parties will be aided by a definitive ruling on this issue. 5 Specifically, the Court concludes that it has "related to" jurisdiction over the Civil Action. 6 Although the contractual and quasi-contractual claims asserted in the Amended Complaint do not 7 directly involve the administration of the estate, the applicable legal standard requires the Court to 8 assess whether the outcome of the litigation might "conceivably" affect the estate. This standard is 9 satisfied because Defendant asserts an indemnity claim against the estate if Plaintiffs are successful 10 in recovering against Defendant in the Civil Action. 11 That the estate is administratively insolvent at present does not alter this analysis. It is true 12 that if the Trustee is not successful in the Trustee Litigation, and no funds are available in the estate 13 for distribution, Defendant's indemnity rights against the estate will have no impact on any 14 distributions made by the estate. But if the Trustee is successful in the Trustee Litigation, 15 Defendant's indemnity rights (which the Court is not adjudicating at this time) could conceivably 16 affect the distributions to be made from the estate. 17 As demonstrated below, however, the Court's conclusion that "related to" jurisdiction exists 18 does not alter its equitable analysis regarding remand. In the Prior Removal, the Court assumed 19 that any jurisdiction it had over the Civil Action was nothing more than "related to" (i.e., "non- 20 core" jurisdiction). Here, the Court concludes that it "has related to" jurisdiction but nevertheless 21 finds, again, that the impact of the Civil Action on the administration of the case is insufficient to 22 justify retention of the Civil Action. 23 C. Equitable Remand 24 "Bankruptcy courts have broad discretion to remand cases over which they otherwise have 25 jurisdiction on any equitable ground." In re Enron Corp., 296 B.R. 505, 508 (C.D. Cal. 2003).

26 Section 1452 of the Judicial Code provides, in pertinent part: "The court to which such claim or 27 cause of action is removed may remand such claim or cause of action on any equitable ground." 28 1 U.S.C. § 1452(b). Courts generally consider fourteen factors in deciding whether to remand a case 2 to state court. Enron, 296 B.R. at 508. The factors courts consider are: 3 (1) the effect or lack thereof on the efficient administration of the estate if the Court recommends [remand or] abstention; 4

(2) extent to which state law issues predominate over bankruptcy issues;

(3) difficult or unsettled nature of applicable law;

(4) presence of related proceeding commenced in state court or other nonbankruptcy

7 proceeding; 8 (5) jurisdictional basis, if any, other than [section] 1334; 9 (6) degree of relatedness or remoteness of proceeding to main bankruptcy case; 10 (7) the substance rather than the form of an asserted core proceeding; 11 (8) the feasibility of severing state law claims from core bankruptcy matters to allow judgments to be entered in state court with enforcement left to the bankruptcy court; 12

(9) the burden on the bankruptcy court's docket;

(10) the likelihood that the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy court involves forum shopping by one of the parties; (11) the existence of a right to a jury trial; (12) the presence in the proceeding of nondebtor parties; (13) comity; and (14) the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action. 20 Id., 508 n.2; see also In re Cytodyn of New Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. 733, 738 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 21 2007). 22 The first factor (efficient administration) weighs in favor of remand. Defendant argues 23 that the efficient administration of this chapter 7 case depends on this Court being the one to 24 adjudicate the Civil Action. Defendant relies on the premise that the Civil Action seeks to revisit a 25 variety of final orders entered in the case. But the argument lacks merit. The Civil Action raises 26 questions of California law, i.e., whether Defendant breached the Waiver Agreement by its 27 participation in the Litigation Fund and Litigation Financing, and whether it was unjustly enriched 1 enforceability any order of this Court. To the extent Defendant has defenses under federal law 2 based on events that occurred during case (including the entry of orders by this Court), it is free to 3 assert those defenses in the Superior Court. 4 But one way or the other, the litigation will not affect the efficient administration of this 5 case. Defendant has not expressed its intention to cease making advances to the estate under the 6 Litigation Financing because of the pendency of the Civil Action or demonstrated any entitlement 7 to do so. To the extent Defendant has previously suggested that the outcome of the Civil Action 8 may impact the willingness of Defendant or other lenders to fund estate litigation in the future, in 9 other cases, its argument is simply irrelevant to the administration of this estate. 10 Finally, Defendant's assertion of an indemnity claim against the estate for any recovery 11 obtained against Defendant by Plaintiffs in the Trustee Litigation does not alter this analysis. 12 Whatever the merits of the indemnity claim, it is and will remain contingent until the Trustee 13 Litigation is completed. If the Trustee is not successful in the Trustee Litigation, any indemnity 14 right Defendant may have against the estate will be of little import. If the Trustee is successful in 15 the Trustee Litigation, the existence and extent of any such indemnity right can promptly be 16 determined in connection with a final distribution by the chapter 7 trustee. The Court simply does 17 not see the possibility of an indemnity claim as an impediment to the prompt resolution of this 18 chapter 7 liquidation case 19 The second factor (predominance of state law issues) weighs in favor of remand. The 20 claims presented in the Civil Action are exclusively state law claims. Defendant argues that in 21 adjudicating those claims, the deciding court may be required to determine whether Plaintiffs' 22 failure to object to various matters in this Court estops them under federal law from asserting their 23 claims. Defendant also argues that the deciding court may be required to apply federal law with 24 respect to the scope of releases given by Defendant. Assuming all this is true, the Court 25 nonetheless finds that state law issues predominate. Although Defendant may assert defenses 26 based on federal law, the action is fundamentally a claim for damages and/or restitution arising out 27 of the parties' contractual and business relations. 1 The third factor (difficult/unsettled nature of the applicable law) weighs against remand. 2 The Court is not persuaded that there are difficult or unsettled areas of state law presented in the 3 Civil Action. The Court could adjudicate the Civil Action. For equitable reasons, however, the 4 Court ultimately concludes it should not be the court to do so. 5 The fourth factor (presence of a related proceeding commenced in state court) is neutral. 6 Prior to removal of the Civil Action, there was no other related civil action pending in the Superior 7 Court. However, the Civil Action clearly was commenced in the Superior Court and, upon remand, 8 would be available to adjudicate the parties' rights.8 9 The fifth factor (jurisdictional basis other than 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b)) favors remand. The 10 only basis asserted for this Court (or any federal court) to exercise jurisdiction over the Civil 11 Action is 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b). 12 The sixth factor (relatedness to the main bankruptcy case) weighs in favor remand. "Here, 13 it is relevant to ask whether the adversary proceeding is 'core' or 'non-core.'" In re Cytodyn of New 14 Mexico, Inc., 374 B.R. at 740 (citing Eastport Assoc. v. City of Los Angeles (In re Eastport Assoc.), 15 935 F.2d 1071, 1076 (9th Cir.1991)). As discussed above, in Section II.B, the Court has only "non- 16 core" jurisdiction over the Civil Matter. 17 The seventh factor (the substance of an asserted "core" proceeding) is irrelevant because 18 the claims in the Civil Action are not core claims and this is not a core proceeding. 19 The eighth factor (feasibility of severing state law claims from core claims with 20 enforcement left to the bankruptcy court) is irrelevant because there are no core claims. 21 The ninth factor (burden on the Court's docket) weighs against remand. This Court's 22 docket is not so burdened that it could not promptly adjudicate the Civil Action. 23 24 8 Based on the removal of the Civil Action, abstention would not be appropriate under Ninth 25 Circuit law because there is no action pending in state court in favor of which the Court can abstain. Schulman v. Cal. (In re Lazar), 237 F.3d 967, 981-82 (9th Cir. 2001) ([Sections] 26 1334(c)(1) and (c)(2) "are simply inapplicable" following removal as no state proceeding exists 27 following removal). Here, however, the Court is focusing on the question of remand. That the Civil Action was pending in Superior Court and has since been removed to this Court is simply not 1 The tenth factor (likelihood of forum shopping) is neutral. The Plaintiffs and the 2 Defendant each accuse the other of forum shopping. Each clearly has a preference as to where the 3 Civil Action proceeds. Each undoubtedly perceives its preferred forum as being better for itself. 4 The Court is not persuaded that the possibility of forum shopping by the parties counsels for or 5 against remand here. 6 The eleventh factor (existence of a jury trial right) is neutral. The entitlement to a jury 7 trial is asserted by Plaintiffs and hotly contested by Defendant, which contends among other things 8 that any such right has been waived. The Court need not wade into this disagreement and believes 9 it is most appropriate for the tribunal that will ultimately adjudicate the dispute to make this 10 important determination. The Court merely observes that even if Plaintiffs do not have a jury trial 11 right, the other factors supporting remand on equitable grounds overwhelmingly favor remand of 12 the Civil Action. 13 The twelfth factor (the presence of nondebtor parties) favors remand. Although not 14 determinative by itself, the fact that the Civil Action is exclusively between non-debtor and non-

15 estate parties—is significant. Again, even though Defendant intends to raise defenses based on 16 federal law and events that occurred in or related to the bankruptcy case, the Civil Action 17 fundamentally is a contractual dispute between two non-debtor parties. 18 The thirteenth factor (comity) does not favor remand. The Superior Court has no 19 significant judicial resources invested in the Civil Action and there do not appear to be any novel or 20 unsettled questions of state law presented. 21 The fourteenth factor (the possibility of prejudice to other parties in the action) is neutral. 22 That Plaintiffs and Defendant each see their preferred forum as better for themselves (and therefore 23 more likely to result in a substantive victory) does not mean that prejudice will result from either 24 outcome. The affected parties will be able to participate equally in either forum and entitled to the 25 same due process protections and other rights. 26 27 1 D. Conclusion 2 Based on its consideration of the foregoing factors, the Court concludes that it should 3 || exercise its equitable discretion to remand the Civil Action to the Superior Court pursuant to 28 4] U.S.C. § 1452(b). 5 THEREFORE, based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED: 6 1. The Civil Action is hereby REMANDED to the Superior Court pursuant to 28 7
U.S.C. § 1452(b), for the equitable reasons described above. 8 2. The OSC is DISCHARGED. 9 3.
