Civil Action No. 24-12885-FDS · No. Civil Action No. 24-12885-FDS; 1:24-cv-12885 · Decided March 27, 2026

SUMMARY

The court grants AlboHomeImp, LLC’s motion to intervene and defendants’ motions for summary judgment in an action challenging the foreclosure and sale of residential property in Lynn, Massachusetts. The court concludes that the plaintiff failed to establish actionable contract, promissory estoppel, negligent misrepresentation, implied-covenant, Chapter 93A, or due-process claims, and lacked standing to challenge alleged voidable defects in mortgage assignments. The court also grants partial summary judgment to AlboHomeImp on the wrongful-foreclosure claim.

DISPOSITION	other
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Plaintiff brought a foreclosure-related action in Massachusetts state court seeking to prevent and invalidate a foreclosure sale. Defendants removed the action to federal court. After the court denied preliminary injunctive relief, defendants moved for summary judgment on all claims, and the foreclosure-sale purchaser moved to intervene and for partial summary judgment on the wrongful-foreclosure claim.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Summary judgment is appropriate when there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. The court viewed the evidence and drew reasonable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party, but required the opposing party to present specific affirmative evidence showing a genuine issue for trial.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether AlboHomeImp, LLC should be permitted to intervene as of right under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 24(a).
2. Whether defendants were entitled to summary judgment on the breach-of-contract, promissory-estoppel, and negligent-misrepresentation claims.
3. Whether defendants were entitled to summary judgment on the claim for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing.
4. Whether Pressman had standing to challenge the validity of the mortgage assignments and whether the assignments authorized U.S. Bank to foreclose.
5. Whether the Massachusetts consumer-protection claim under Mass. Gen. Laws chapter 93A failed because Pressman did not send and plead the required demand letter.
6. Whether the foreclosure sale violated the notice requirements of Mass. Gen. Laws chapter 244, section 14 or the Due Process Clauses.
7. Whether AlboHomeImp was entitled to summary judgment on the wrongful-foreclosure claim.

HOLDINGS

1. AlboHomeImp was entitled to intervene because, although the timeliness factor potentially weighed against intervention, the remaining circumstances strongly favored intervention: it owned the property, faced substantial harm if the requested relief were granted, and intervention would cause little prejudice to the existing parties.
2. Defendants were entitled to summary judgment on Counts 1, 2, and 3 because Pressman did not identify a specific breached contractual term, actionable promise, or false representation, and she did not present evidence establishing damages caused by force-placed insurance.
3. Defendants were entitled to summary judgment on Count 4 because Pressman failed to show damages caused by any alleged delay in processing HAF assistance or any misrepresentation concerning foreclosure, and the implied covenant could not create an obligation to postpone foreclosure or negotiate a loan modification that was not contemplated by the contractual relationship.
4. Pressman lacked standing to challenge alleged defects in the mortgage assignments that would make them merely voidable, and she failed to show that the assignments were void or otherwise invalid. The original mortgage continued to encumber the property after the assumption and modification agreement, and U.S. Bank therefore was not shown to lack authority to foreclose.

5. The chapter 93A claim failed as a matter of law because Pressman neither alleged that she sent the required written demand letter nor presented evidence that she did so.
6. Defendants were entitled to summary judgment on Count 7 because private foreclosure conduct did not constitute state action for purposes of the Due Process Clauses, the original October 30, 2024 sale notices complied with Mass. Gen. Laws chapter 244, section 14, and the postponement to December 10 was reasonably communicated by first-class mail without requiring renewed section 14 publication and registered-mail notice.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Timeliness must be assessed by the totality of the circumstances.” (II)

“Summary judgment shall be granted when “there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”” (III.A)

“The covenant of good faith and fair dealing, which is implied in every contract, “provides that neither party shall do anything which will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract.”” (III.B.2)

“In other words, “a mortgagor has standing to challenge a mortgage assignment as invalid, ineffective, or void (if, say, the assignor had nothing to assign or had no authority to make an assignment to a particular assignee)” but “does not have standing to challenge shortcomings in an assignment that render it merely voidable at the election of one party but otherwise effective to pass legal title.”” (III.B.3)

“Under the circumstances, notifying plaintiff of the postponement by first-class mail complied with those obligations.” (III.B.5)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Barbara Pressman obtained a $100,000 home-equity line of credit secured by a mortgage on 30 Red Rock Street in Lynn, Massachusetts. After Barbara's death, Lisa Pressman became trustee and beneficiary of the property trust and entered into an assumption and modification agreement with Santander Bank, expressly assuming the original mortgage and note while increasing the principal balance to reflect the existing debt. The mortgage was later assigned through the relevant U.S. Bank entities, and Pressman remained delinquent on the loan. Following unsuccessful efforts involving Homeowner Assistance Fund and RAFT assistance, U.S. Bank provided notice of a foreclosure sale originally scheduled for October 30, 2024; the sale was postponed to December 10, 2024, on which date the property was sold to AlboHomeImp, LLC.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Pressman filed the original complaint in state court on October 28, 2024, seeking a preliminary injunction against foreclosure. Defendants removed the case on November 20, 2024, and the federal court denied preliminary relief on December 10, 2024. Pressman filed an amended complaint on March 19, 2025, asserting seven claims. Defendants moved for summary judgment on June 25, 2025; AlboHomeImp moved to intervene on August 19, 2025 and later sought partial summary judgment on Count 5. The court granted intervention and granted both summary-judgment motions in full.
