

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, APPELLATE DIVISION, FOURTH JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

People v. Washington

2026 NY Slip Op 01899 (N.Y. Ct. App. 2026) · No. 880 KA 19-02184 · Decided March 27, 2026

SUMMARY

The New York Appellate Division, Fourth Department, unanimously affirmed Joe Washington’s conviction for first-degree manslaughter arising from a fatal stabbing. The court rejected challenges concerning the justification defense, access to the victim’s criminal record, ineffective assistance of counsel, prosecutorial misconduct, a Batson challenge, and the severity of the sentence. Several claims were deemed unpreserved, and the court declined to review them in the interest of justice.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	Supreme Court of the State of New York, Appellate Division, Fourth Judicial Department
WRITING FOR THE COURT	Whalen, P.J.; Smith, J.; Greenwood, J.; DelConte, J.; Hannah, J.
JURISDICTION	New York Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Fourth Department
DECIDED	March 27, 2026
DOCKET	880 KA 19-02184
DISPOSITION	affirmed
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Defendant appealed from a judgment of Onondaga County Court convicting him, after a jury trial, of manslaughter in the first degree.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	The court reviewed the verdict under the weight-of-the-evidence standard, viewing the evidence in light of the elements of the crime as charged and the justification instruction. Unpreserved claims were reviewed only for possible discretionary interest-of-justice relief, which the court declined to exercise. Ineffective-assistance claims were evaluated under New York's meaningful-representation standard.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the jury's verdict was against the weight of the evidence with respect to defendant's justification defense.
2. Whether County Court erred by denying defendant's pretrial request for the victim's entire criminal record and related police reports for use in presenting a justification defense.
3. Whether defendant was deprived of a complete justification defense because the victim's criminal record was not produced, and whether counsel was ineffective for failing to obtain the record and reports.
4. Whether alleged prosecutorial misconduct during opening statement and summation deprived defendant of a fair trial.
5. Whether the prosecutor's stated reasons for striking a prospective juror were pretextual under Batson.
6. Whether defendant's sentence was unduly harsh or severe.

HOLDINGS

1. The manslaughter conviction was not against the weight of the evidence because the jury could reasonably find that the victim was not using or attempting to use deadly physical force when defendant stabbed him.
2. The court properly denied defendant's request for the victim's entire criminal record because defendant did not establish that the identified prior violent acts were reasonably related in time and quality to the homicide or that defendant knew of the other acts at the time of the homicide.
3. Defendant's claim that denial of the record request deprived him of a complete justification defense was unpreserved, and the court declined to review it in the interest of justice; alternatively, the evidence admitted at trial was sufficient for the jury to consider justification.
4. Defendant was not denied effective assistance because he failed to demonstrate the absence of strategic or other legitimate explanations for counsel's failure to obtain the victim's criminal record and related police reports, and the record showed meaningful representation.
5. The court declined to review defendant's claims that the prosecutor vouched for witnesses, denigrated the defense, or misrepresented evidence because most claims were not preserved by timely objection and the objections made were on different grounds; the court also declined interest-of-justice review.
6. Defendant's claim that the prosecutor's reasons for striking a prospective juror were pretextual was unpreserved because defendant failed to articulate why the prosecutor's explanations were pretextual, and the court declined interest-of-justice review.

KEY QUOTATIONS

"It is well settled that a court may permit a defendant who asserts a justification defense in a homicide trial to introduce evidence of specific acts of violence committed by the victim, provided that the defendant *establishes that they had knowledge of the acts at the time of the homicide and that the acts are reasonably related to the crime of which the defendant stands charged” ([1])

*“Viewing the evidence, the law, and the circumstances of this case in totality and as of the time of the representation, we conclude on the record before us that defendant received meaningful representation” ([2])

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Defendant and the victim became involved in an argument, and defendant fatally stabbed the victim. Defendant admitted stabbing the victim but claimed that he acted in self-defense or justification. The evidence included testimony that the victim was not using or attempting to use deadly physical force when defendant stabbed him, while defendant testified about the victim's short temper, prior displays of weapons, and defendant's awareness of some prior violent acts.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Following an argument in which defendant fatally stabbed the victim, a jury convicted defendant of first-degree manslaughter. Onondaga County Court denied defendant's pretrial request for the victim's entire criminal record, and the court entered judgment on September 30, 2019. The Appellate Division unanimously affirmed, rejecting or declining to review defendant's claims concerning justification, access to the victim's criminal record, ineffective assistance, prosecutorial misconduct, a Batson challenge, and sentence severity.
