QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) of a noncitizen who previously entered the United States without inspection and has established substantial ties to the United States violates the Fifth Amendment Due Process Clause when imposed without an individualized assessment of flight risk and dangerousness.
2. Whether immediate release with reasonable conditions and safeguards against redetention was an appropriate remedy for the due process violation.

HOLDINGS

1. Because Petitioner previously entered the United States without inspection but established ties through his residency, the Fifth Amendment Due Process Clause guarantees him an individualized assessment of flight risk and dangerousness and an opportunity to respond before ICE detention.
2. Because Petitioner's detention violated the Fifth Amendment Due Process Clause, he was entitled to equitable relief consisting of immediate release from custody under reasonable conditions, with safeguards governing any redetention.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment guarantees Petitioner an individualized assessment of his flight risk and dangerousness and an opportunity to respond prior to detention by ICE.” (at 3)

“Thus, the Court holds that because Petitioner’s detention violates his rights under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment, he is entitled to equitable relief and that the appropriate remedy is Petitioner’s immediate release from custody with additional safeguards against redetention.” (at 3)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Luis Angel Cobarrubias Lopez, a 34-year-old citizen of Mexico, entered the United States in 2009 and had lived and worked in the United States for approximately 16 years. He had a pending asylum application, an employment authorization document, and a five-month-old United States citizen child. After he was detained at a Customs and Border Protection checkpoint in January 2026, he remained detained at the Rio Grande Processing Center and challenged his detention.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a petition for writ of habeas corpus on February 12, 2026, challenging mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) and asserting a Fifth Amendment due process violation. The court ordered Respondents to respond by February 20, 2026, but they did not respond. Relying on its prior analysis in Bonilla Chicas v. Warden and related district court decisions, the court granted the petition and ordered Petitioner's immediate release under reasonable conditions.

DISPOSITION

REMAND INSTRUCTIONS

Respondents were ordered to release Petitioner immediately under reasonable conditions, submit a status report confirming release within 24 hours, and provide advance notice to Petitioner's counsel. If Petitioner is redetained, Respondents must follow applicable regulations and procedures and provide an individualized assessment of flight risk and dangerousness. The parties were also ordered to file advisories concerning whether they opposed entry of a final judgment.

ORDER

Pending before the Court is Petitioner Luis Angel Cobarrubias Lopez's ("Petitioner") Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241, (Dkt. 1), challenging the lawfulness of his detention by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officials and the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). Petitioner filed his Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus on February 12, 2026. (Dkt. 1.) Petitioner is 34-year-old citizen of Mexico who first entered the United States in October of 2009. (Id. at 10.) Petitioner has lived in the United States for 16 years and has worked in the restaurant and hospitality industry since 2011. (Id.) Petitioner is the father to a United States citizen child, who is five months old. (Id. at 10–11.) Petitioner filed an I-589 Application for Asylum in April of 2025, and was issued an employment authorization document. (Id.) On January 9, 2026, Petitioner was on his way to San Antonio from his residence in McAllen, Texas when he and his siblings were detained at the Falfurrias, Texas Customs and Border Patrol Checkpoint. (Id.) Petitioner presented his pending asylum application receipt and employment authorization document but was detained and taken into custody. (Id.) Petitioner remains detained at Rio Grande 1 / 5 Processing Center. (Id.) He notes in his Petition that he had a master calendar hearing set for February 17, 2026, and that he intends to seek cancellation of removal and withholding of removal under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) § 241(b)(3) and relief under the Convention Against Torture. (Id. at 12.) He further states that if relief is denied, he intends to appeal an unfavorable decision to the Board of Immigration Appeals. (Id.) Petitioner argues he is being unlawfully detained subject to mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) in violation of his rights under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment and the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA). (Id. at 12–14.) He asks the Court to order his immediate release. (Id. at 14.) The Court ordered Respondents to show cause and respond to Petitioner’s Petition on or before February 20, 2026, which is between the three-to-twenty-day time period contemplated by 28 U.S.C. § 2243. (Dkt. 4.) The Court’s Order was served electronically on Respondents, and the Court advised Respondents that if no response was received, the Court may treat the Petition as unopposed. (Id. at 1.) Respondents failed to respond. Accordingly, the Court treats Petitioner’s Petition as unopposed. The Court notes that on February 6, 2026, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit addressed the dispute over the statutory interpretation of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)’s mandatory detention provision in Buenrostro-Mendez v. Bondi, — F.4th —, No. 25-20496, 2026 WL 323330 (5th Cir. Feb. 6, 2026). In the precedential decision, the Fifth Circuit determined that noncitizens apprehended in the interior who entered without inspection are “applications for admission” subject to mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) and therefore are not entitled to bond hearings under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). Id. at *4. The decision was limited to the statutory interpretation of the applicable provisions and left unresolved other claims brought by 2 / 5 petitioners challenging their mandatory detention, including constitutional questions under the Due Process Clause. Id. at *9. Upon review of Petitioner’s case, the Court finds that Petitioner’s due process claim presents nearly identical legal questions to those previously considered by the Court in Bonilla Chicas v. Warden, 5:26-cv-00131, Dkt. No.11 (S.D. Tex. Feb. 20, 2026), in which the Court determined that the petitioner’s detention by ICE violated his rights under the Due Process Clause. Because Petitioner’s legal claims are materially indistinguishable from those considered by the Court in Bonilla Chicas and because Respondents failed to file a response, the Court is unpersuaded to alter its prior analysis of the issue. In accordance with its prior analysis, the Court holds that because Petitioner is a noncitizen who previously entered the United States without inspection and has established ties to the United States through his residency, the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment guarantees Petitioner an individualized assessment of his flight risk and dangerousness and an opportunity to respond prior to detention by ICE. This conclusion is further supported by the growing number of district courts that have likewise found that mandatory detention of noncitizens who have established a presence in the United States violates their procedural due process rights. See, e.g., Vieira v. De Anda-Ybarra, 2025 WL 2937880, at *7 (W.D. Tex. Oct. 16, 2025); Lopez-Arevelo v. Ripa, 801 F. Supp. 3d 668, 687 (W.D. Tex. 2025) (collecting cases); Hernandez-Fernandez v. Lyons, 2025 WL 2976923, at *7 (W.D. Tex. Oct. 21, 2025); Marceau v. Noem et al., 2026 WL 368953, at *2 (W.D. Tex. Feb. 9, 2026); Clemente Ceballos v. Garite, 3:26-cv-00312-DB, at *3 n. 2 (W.D. Tex. Feb 10, 2026). Thus, the Court holds that because Petitioner's detention violates his rights under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment, he is entitled to equitable relief and that the appropriate 3 / 5 remedy is Petitioner's immediate release from custody with additional safeguards against redetention.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Petitioner's Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, (Dkt. 1), is GRANTED.

1. Respondents are ORDERED to RELEASE Petitioner from custody immediately, under reasonable conditions of release, and to submit a status report to the Court confirming Petitioner's release within 24 hours of the date of this Order.
2. Respondents must notify Petitioner's counsel of the exact time and location of Petitioner's release no less than three hours prior to Petitioner's release from custody.
3. If Petitioner is redetained, all applicable regulations and procedures must be followed, including that Petitioner be afforded an individualized assessment of Petitioner's flight risk and dangerousness as guaranteed under the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment.
4. Within two weeks of the date of this Order, the parties shall FILE advisories with the Court indicating whether the parties oppose entry of a final judgment in this case. The Clerk is also DIRECTED to e-mail a copy of the Petition, (Dkt. 1), and this Order to the following email addresses: usatxs.civilnotice@usdoj.gov, Daniel.Hu@usdoj.gov, and Hector.Ramirez@usdoj.gov.
