QUESTIONS PRESENTED

- Whether the appellate court should direct the trial court clerk to supplement the clerk's record with omitted relevant documents under Texas Rule of Appellate Procedure 34.5(c).
- Whether appellee should receive an extension of time to file a responsive brief because of the incomplete clerk's record.

HOLDINGS

1. The appellate court may direct the trial court clerk to prepare, certify, and file a supplemental record containing relevant items omitted from the clerk's record, and the court ordered supplementation of the identified probate documents.
2. Appellee's request for an extension of time to file the responsive brief was granted, with the brief due February 9, 2023.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The appellate record was missing complete copies of several probate documents, including the application for probate, the will, the death certificate, the order probating the will, letters testamentary, the complaint, and the inventory. Appellee notified the appellate court of the omissions and requested supplementation of the clerk's record and a short extension of time to file a responsive brief.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter originated in County Court at Law No. 1 of Webb County, Texas, in probate cause number 2008-PB7-000086L1. While the appeal was pending, appellee asserted that the clerk's record omitted several probate documents. The court ordered the trial court clerk to file a supplemental record and extended appellee's deadline to file a responsive brief.
