

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF INDIANA, FORT WAYNE DIVISION

Aaron C. Centurioni v. Brady Thomas, et al.

Centurioni · No. 1:25-CV-561-TLS-AZ · Decided April 23, 2026

SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the Northern District of Indiana dismissed Aaron C. Centurioni’s amended prisoner civil rights complaint under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A for failure to state a claim. The court held that it could not interfere with Centurioni’s pending state criminal proceedings and that jail officials’ inspection and confiscation of his non-privileged mail to ensure compliance with court orders did not violate the First Amendment. The court directed the clerk to close the case.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	United States District Court for the Northern District of Indiana, Fort Wayne Division
WRITING FOR THE COURT	Theresa L. Springmann
JURISDICTION	United States District Court for the Northern District of Indiana, Fort Wayne Division
DECIDED	April 23, 2026
DOCKET	1:25-CV-561-TLS-AZ
DISPOSITION	dismissed
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	A prisoner proceeding without counsel filed an amended complaint after the court previously found that his original complaint failed to state a claim and gave him an opportunity to replead. The district court screened the amended pleading under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A and dismissed the action for failure to state a claim.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A, the court must dismiss a prisoner's pleading if it is frivolous or malicious, fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or seeks monetary relief from an immune defendant. The court liberally construes allegations filed by a self-represented litigant and applies the facial-plausibility standard under Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly and Ashcroft v. Iqbal.
PRECEDENTIAL VALUE	nonprecedential

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the amended complaint stated a constitutional claim based on jail officials opening and confiscating Centurioni's mail.
2. Whether the federal court could dismiss or otherwise interfere with Centurioni's pending state criminal charges.
3. Whether Centurioni had a First Amendment right to send mail that interfered with his pending criminal cases or violated orders prohibiting communication.
4. Whether the amended complaint should be dismissed under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A after Centurioni had already been given an opportunity to amend.

HOLDINGS

1. The federal court may not dismiss or otherwise interfere with Centurioni's pending state criminal charges under the principles of Younger abstention.
2. Opening and inspecting mail sent to a family member outside the prisoner's presence does not, by itself, violate the First Amendment.
3. A detainee does not have an unfettered First Amendment right to send mail that interferes with ongoing criminal cases or harasses persons with whom the detainee is prohibited from communicating.
4. The amended complaint failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted and was subject to dismissal under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“To proceed beyond the pleading stage, a complaint must “state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.””

“A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.”

“Additionally, mail to a family member—like the letters he sent to his father—can be opened and inspected even outside of his presence without violating the First Amendment.”

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Centurioni was detained at the DeKalb County Jail pending trial on multiple criminal charges, and a no-contact order was issued in those proceedings. He also faced a separate charge based on allegedly sending letters from jail to his father that were intended for his wife and minor daughters, despite a civil protective order prohibiting such communications. He alleged that jail staff opened and confiscated his mail without permission and asserted that he should not face criminal charges because of that conduct. The court found that the mail was opened to enforce the no-contact order and that the challenged mail involved communications to a family member and communications prohibited by court orders.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Centurioni filed a prisoner civil-rights action concerning the opening and confiscation of his mail and related pending criminal and protective-order proceedings. The court found that his original complaint was subject to dismissal under § 1915A but allowed him to amend. He filed a one-page document labeled an amended complaint that did not reproduce the entire pleading as required by the local rules. Although the court proceeded to screen the filing because the substance of the claim was discernible, it dismissed the action and directed the clerk to close the case.
