CALIFORNIA

Joyce Hudson, an individual, and Shaun Hudson, an individual v.
Costco Wholesale Corporation, and Does 1 through 10, inclusive

Hudson v. Costco Wholesale Corporation, No. 2:24-cv-01728-TLN-CSK (E.D. Cal. Dec. 9, 2025) · No. 2:24-cv-01728-TLN-CSK · Decided December 10, 2025

SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the Eastern District of California granted Costco Wholesale Corporation’s motion for summary judgment in a premises-liability action arising from a slip-and-fall incident. The court held that Plaintiffs’ admissions that Costco lacked actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition were conclusively binding under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 36(b), defeating their personal-injury and loss-of-consortium claims.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	United States District Court for the Eastern District of California
WRITING FOR THE COURT	Troy L. Nunley
JURISDICTION	United States District Court for the Eastern District of California
DECIDED	December 10, 2025
DOCKET	2:24-cv-01728-TLN-CSK
DISPOSITION	other
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Defendant moved for summary judgment on plaintiffs' premises-liability personal-injury and loss-of-consortium claims after removing the action from California state court based on diversity jurisdiction.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Summary judgment is proper when there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. The nonmoving party must identify admissible evidence establishing a genuine and material factual dispute and may not rely solely on pleading denials. The court views evidence and reasonable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party, but does not draw unsupported inferences.
PRECEDENTIAL VALUE	unpublished district court decision

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether Plaintiffs' admissions that Costco lacked actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition conclusively established the absence of an essential element of their premises-liability claims.
2. Whether Plaintiffs' contradictory evidence concerning surveillance footage, the timing of the condition, and maintenance of the premises created a genuine dispute of material fact sufficient to defeat summary judgment.
3. Whether summary judgment should be entered against Plaintiffs' personal-injury and derivative loss-of-consortium claims.

HOLDINGS

1. Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 36(b), Plaintiffs' admissions that Costco lacked actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition conclusively established that fact because the admissions had not been withdrawn or amended.
2. Summary judgment was warranted because Plaintiffs could not establish a genuine dispute concerning Costco's actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition, an essential element of their premises-liability claims.
3. The loss-of-consortium claim was also subject to summary judgment because it is dependent on the injured spouse's personal-injury claim, which could not survive the absence of a triable notice issue.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Under Rule 36(b) a party’s admission conclusively establishes a fact unless withdrawn. Admissions may serve as the basis for granting summary judgment.” (at 3)

“the “new provisions give an admission a conclusively binding effect” that is more like an “admission in pleadings or a stipulation drafted by counsel” than an “evidentiary admission of a party” which may be rebutted” (at 4)

“this evidence cannot create a triable issue of fact where Plaintiffs’ admissions are conclusive that Defendant did not have notice of the dangerous condition.” (at 4-5)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

On May 21, 2022, Joyce Hudson slipped and fell on a wet substance while exiting Costco's warehouse in Vallejo, California. Plaintiffs did not know how long the dangerous condition had been present, although surveillance footage showed a Costco employee walking through the area at 3:44 p.m., approximately twenty-nine minutes before the incident. In responses to requests for admission, Plaintiffs conceded that Costco lacked actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition and did not seek to withdraw or amend those admissions.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Plaintiffs filed suit in Solano County Superior Court on December 1, 2023. Defendant removed the action to the Eastern District of California on June 18, 2024. Defendant moved for summary judgment on June 27, 2025; the court granted the motion, directed the Clerk to enter judgment for Defendant, and ordered the case closed.

OPINION

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT 9 EASTERN DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA 10 11 JOYCE HUDSON, an individual, and No. 2:24-cv-01728-TLN-CSK
SHAUN HUDSON, an individual, 12 Plaintiffs, 13 ORDER v. 14 COSTCO WHOLESALE 15
CORPORATION, and DOES 1 through 10, inclusive, 16 Defendants. 17 18 19 This matter is before the Court on Defendant Costco Wholesale Corporation’s 20 (“Defendant”) Motion for Summary Judgment.

(ECF No. 9.) Plaintiffs Joyce Hudson (“Joyce”) 21 and Shaun Hudson (“Shaun”) (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) filed an opposition. (ECF No. 10.) 22 Defendant filed a reply. (ECF No. 12.) For the reasons set forth below, the Court GRANTS 23 Defendant’s motion. 24 /// 25 /// 26 /// 27 /// 28 ///
1 I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND1 2 This case arises from a slip and fall that occurred at Defendant’s warehouse in Vallejo, 3 California on May 21, 2022.2 (ECF No. 10-2 at 2.)

On this day, Joyce slipped and fell on a wet 4 substance as she was in the process of exiting the warehouse at 4:13 p.m. (“the Incident”).3 (Id. at 5 3, 7.) Plaintiffs are unaware of how long any dangerous condition was present on the ground 6 before the Incident occurred. (Id. at 3.) Surveillance footage shows Defendant’s employee 7 walked through the area of the Incident at 3:44 p.m.

(Id. at 7.) 8 On December 1, 2023, Plaintiffs filed a lawsuit against Defendant in Solano County 9 Superior Court alleging personal injury and loss of consortium claims. (ECF No. 1-1 at 6.) On 10 June 18, 2024, Defendant removed the action on the basis of diversity jurisdiction. (ECF No. 1.) 11 On June 27, 2025, Defendant filed the instant motion. (ECF No. 9.)

12 II. STANDARD OF LAW 13 Summary judgment is appropriate when the moving party demonstrates no genuine issue 14 of any material fact exists and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. 15 R. Civ. P. 56(a); Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 157 (1970).

Under summary 16 judgment practice, the moving party always bears the initial responsibility of informing the 17 district court of the basis of its motion, and identifying those portions of “the pleadings, 18 depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any,” 19 which it believes demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.

Celotex Corp. v. 20 Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). “[W]here the nonmoving party will bear the burden of proof 21 1 Unless otherwise indicated, the facts summarized here are undisputed. (ECF No. 10-2.) 22 2 Plaintiffs dispute this fact on the basis that Defendant stated the incident occurred on 23 “May 1, 2022” instead of “May 21, 2022.” (ECF No. 10-2 at 2.)

However, in reply, Defendant acknowledges May 21, 2022, is the operative date and reference to the “May 1, 2022” date was a 24 typographical error. (ECF No. 12 at 2; ECF No. 12-1 at 1–2.) Therefore, the Court considers this fact undisputed. 25 3 Plaintiffs dispute this fact in part because Plaintiffs assert Joyce was still in the warehouse 26 when the slip occurred.

(ECF No. 10-2 at 3.) In reply, Defendant acknowledges Joyce was in 27 the warehouse when the incident occurred. (ECF No. 12 at 2–3.) Therefore, the Court considers this fact undisputed. 28 1 at trial on a dispositive issue, a summary judgment motion may properly be made in reliance 2 solely on the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file.” Id. at 324 (internal quotation marks omitted).

Indeed, summary judgment should be entered against a party who does not make a showing sufficient to establish the existence of an element essential to that party’s case, and on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial. Id. at 322–23. If the moving party meets its initial responsibility, the burden then shifts to the opposing party to establish that a genuine issue as to any material fact does exist.

Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 585–87 (1986); First Nat’l Bank of Ariz. v. Cities Serv. Co., 391 U.S. 253, 288–89 (1968). In attempting to establish the existence of this factual dispute, the opposing party may not rely upon the denials of its pleadings but is required to tender evidence of specific facts in the form of affidavits, and/or admissible discovery material, in support of its contention that the dispute exists.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). The opposing party must demonstrate that the fact in contention is material, i.e., a fact that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law, Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986), and that the dispute is genuine, i.e., “the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party.” Id. at 251–52.

In the endeavor to establish the existence of a factual dispute, the opposing party need not establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. Id. at 249. It is sufficient that “the claimed factual dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the parties’ differing versions of the truth at trial.” First Nat’l Bank of Ariz., 391 U.S. at 288–89.

Thus, the “purpose of summary judgment is to ‘pierce the pleadings and to assess the proof in order to see whether there is a genuine need for trial.’” Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co., 475 U.S. at 587 (quoting Rule 56(e) advisory committee’s note on 1963 amendments). In resolving the summary judgment motion, the court examines the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with any applicable affidavits.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); SEC v. Seaboard Corp., 677 F.2d 1301, 1305–06 (9th Cir. 1982). The evidence of the opposing party is to be believed and all reasonable inferences that may be drawn from the facts pleaded before the court must be drawn in favor of the opposing party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 255. Nevertheless, inferences are not drawn out of the air, and it is the opposing party’s obligation to produce a factual predicate from which the inference may be drawn.

Richards v. Nielsen Freight Lines, 602 F. Supp. 1224, 1244–45 (E.D. Cal. 1985), aff’d, 810 F.2d 898 (9th Cir. 1987). Finally, to demonstrate a genuine issue that necessitates a jury trial, the opposing party “must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts.” 6 Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co., 475 U.S. at 586. “Where the record taken as a whole could not lead 7 a rational trier of fact to find for the nonmoving party, there is no ‘genuine issue for trial.’” Id. at 8 587 (quoting First Nat’l Bank of Ariz., 391 U.S. at 289).

9 III. ANALYSIS 10 Defendant moves for summary judgment on both of Plaintiffs’ claims, which are based on 11 a theory of premises liability. (ECF No. 9 at 2.) 12 Premises liability has the same elements as negligence: duty, breach, causation, and 13 damages.⁴ Kesner v. Superior Court, 1 Cal. 5th 1132, 1158 (2016). Further, to establish 14 premises liability, a plaintiff must prove the store owner had actual or constructive notice of a 15 dangerous condition prior to the plaintiff’s injury.

See Ortega v. Kmart Corp., 26 Cal. 4th 1200, 16 1206 (2001). 17 Defendant argues Plaintiffs’ claims fail as a matter of law because Plaintiffs admit 18 Defendant did not have actual or constructive notice of a dangerous condition.⁵ (ECF No. 9 at 19 16.)

In opposition, Plaintiffs do not address their admission and rather point to gaps in the 20 surveillance footage, the unknown timing of the inception of the dangerous condition, and 21 Defendant’s alleged negligence in maintaining a hand sanitizer station to suggest there is a 22 genuine dispute as to Defendant’s notice of the dangerous condition. (ECF No. 10 at 14–15.)

23 24 4 In diversity actions, federal courts apply state substantive law. Snead v. Metro. Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 237 F.3d 1080, 1090 (9th Cir. 2001). 25 5 Defendant also argues Plaintiffs’ claims fail as a matter of law because Defendant 26 reasonably maintained the premises. (ECF No. 9 at 12.)

Because the Court concludes Plaintiffs 27 cannot establish the notice element of a premises liability claim as a matter of law, the Court does not address this argument. 28 1 The Court finds Plaintiffs cannot establish a genuine dispute of material fact under the 2 theory of premises liability because Plaintiffs admitted Defendant did not have actual or 3 constructive notice in their responses to Defendant’s requests for admission.

(See ECF No. 9-2 at 4 43; ECF No. 9-2 at 55.) Under Rule 36(b) a party’s admission conclusively establishes a fact 5 unless withdrawn. Admissions may serve as the basis for granting summary judgment. Conlon v. 6 United States, 474 F.3d 616, 621 (9th Cir. 2007).

Here, Plaintiffs affirmatively conceded that 7 Defendant did not have actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition. (See ECF No. 9- 8 2 at 43; ECF No. 9-2 at 55.) Further, Plaintiffs have not moved to withdraw or amend their 9 admissions. Plaintiffs did not even address the admissions in their opposition. (ECF No. 10.) 10 Thus, the admissions are conclusive.

See Fed. R. Civ. P. 36(b). 11 Neither is Plaintiffs’ contradictory evidence persuasive because admissions are not 12 rebuttable. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 36(b) advisory committee’s note to 1970 amendment (stating the 13 “new provisions give an admission a conclusively binding effect” that is more like an “admission 14 in pleadings or a stipulation drafted by counsel” than an “evidentiary admission of a party” which 15 may be rebutted); Tillamook Country Smoker, Inc. v. Tillamook Cnty.

Creamery Ass’n, 465 F.3d 16 1102, 1111–12 (9th Cir. 2006) (the court and parties are bound by such admissions, which cannot 17 be “ignored by the district court simply because it finds the evidence presented by the party 18 against whom the admission operates more credible”).

Accordingly, Plaintiffs’ arguments 19 regarding the gaps in the surveillance footage, the unknown timing of the dangerous condition, 20 and Defendant’s alleged negligent maintenance are inconsequential because this evidence cannot 21 create a triable issue of fact where Plaintiffs’ admissions are conclusive that Defendant did not 22 have notice of the dangerous condition.

See Fed. R. Civ. P. 36(b) advisory committee’s note to 23 1970 amendment; Tillamook Country Smoker, Inc., 465 F.3d at 1111–12. 24 Thus, the Court finds there is no genuine dispute as to whether Defendant had actual or 25 constructive notice of the dangerous condition.

Accordingly, the lack of a genuine dispute as to 26 the notice element of premises liability dictates that Plaintiffs’ claims for personal injury and loss 27 28 1 | of consortium® must be summarily adjudicated. See Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 322-23 (finding a 2 | claim must be summarily adjudicated if there is no triable issue of material fact in regard to an 3 | essential element of the claim).
