Cedric M. Scott, PhD v. General Land Office of the State of Texas

Scott v. General Land Office · No. 15-25-00217-CV · Decided November 25, 2025

SUMMARY

This document is an appellant’s pro se motion to strike the Texas General Land Office’s motion to dismiss an appeal for lack of jurisdiction. The appellant argues that orders issued by the trial judge are void because of alleged judicial disqualification, that the appellee remains in procedural default for failing to answer the live amended petition, and that an earlier email does not constitute a knowing waiver. QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether alleged orders entered by a disqualified trial judge are void and may support dismissal of the appeal.
2. Whether the General Land Office's alleged failure to answer the operative second amended petition prevents it from seeking dismissal or other affirmative relief.
3. Whether appellant's prior email stating that she did not oppose dismissal constituted a knowing and voluntary waiver.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Because all such orders are void ab initio, they cannot support dismissal in this Court.” (3)

“A defaulting party may not request affirmative relief, challenge the merits, or move for dismissal until it has properly answered and rejoined issue.” (4)

“A valid waiver must be intentional, knowing, and based on full knowledge of the relevant facts.” (5)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The motion alleges that Judge Cory R. Liu previously represented the General Land Office in matters substantially related to federal CDBG-DR funds, compliance oversight, and civil-rights enforcement. It further alleges that Judge Liu presided over the case, entered adverse procedural rulings, and later recused himself on November 21, 2025. Appellant also asserts that the General Land Office failed to answer the second amended petition filed August 12, 2025 and therefore remained in procedural default.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The appeal was transferred from the Third Court of Appeals and arises from the 250th Judicial District Court of Travis County, Texas, trial court cause number D-1-GN-25-000006. Appellant asserted that the trial judge was disqualified because of prior representation of the General Land Office, that rulings issued by the judge were void, and that the General Land Office had not answered the operative second amended petition. The filing asks the appellate court to deny or strike the appellee's motion to dismiss, but no actual disposition by the appellate court appears in the source.

APPELLANT'S MOTION TO STRIKE "GLO'S MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL FOR LACK OF JURISDICTION"

Respectfully submitted, /s/ Cedric M. Scott Cedric M. Scott, PhD 901 Hidden Valley Drive, #9204
Round Rock, Texas 78665 cedricscott41@gmail.com Appellant, Pro Se TO THE HONORABLE FIFTEENTH COURT OF APPEALS: Appellant, Cedric M. Scott, PhD1, files this Motion to Strike the General Land Office's (GLO) Motion to Dismiss, and respectfully shows the Court as follows:

I. RELEVANT FACTS

GLO's Motion To Dismiss should be denied because:

1. It rests entirely on orders entered by a judge who was aware at the time of his appointment that he was legally disqualified but did not recuse himself from Appellant's case until November 21, 2025;
2. GLO has never answered the operative Second Amended Petition and remains in procedural default and has not re-joined the issue; and

3. There is no valid waiver, or consent that exists to support dismissal.

The record before the Court demonstrates structural defects that taints every adverse ruling issued below and renders dismissal improper as a matter of law.

II. ARGUMENT

A. The Motion to Dismiss Cannot Stand Because the Trial Court's Orders Are Void Due to Judicial Disqualification Judge Cory R. Liu previously represented GLO in matters substantially 1 Plaintiff's first name is pronounced See-Drick and not Said-Drick. Gender is female, and pronouns are she, her, and hers. 2 related to federal CDBG-DR funds, compliance oversight, and civil-rights enforcement—the same categories of governmental conduct that underlie Appellant's whistleblower claims. Under Tex. R. Civ. P. 18b(a)(1)(B), mandatory disqualification exists where a judge “served as a lawyer in the matter in controversy, or a lawyer with whom the judge previously practiced law served during such association as a lawyer concerning the matter.” Such disqualification is automatic and jurisdictional. Texas law is unequivocal that a disqualified judge is “without authority to act in the case,” and any orders entered are “void, not voidable.” In re Union Pac. Res. Co., 969 S.W.2d 427, 428 (Tex. 1998); In re City of Lubbock, 624 S.W.3d 506, 510 (Tex. 2021). A disqualified judge has no authority to act. In re Union Carbide Corp., 273 S.W.3d 152, 155–56 (Tex. 2008). Parties cannot waive or forfeit a judge's disqualification—silence is irrelevant. Buckholts Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Glaser, 632 S.W.2d 146, 148 (Tex. 1982). Any order signed by a disqualified judge is void whether or not the parties object. Cox v. Cox, 183 S.W.2d 206, 208 (Tex. 1944). Judge Liu presided over this case for seven months knowing that he previously represented GLO, denied Appellant's summary judgment motion, refused to rule on default judgment and sanctions, compelled Appellant's deposition, and managed scheduling—all before recusing himself on November 3 21, 2025, only after Appellant provided supporting evidence of the conflict. These rulings form the very procedural posture on which GLO now relies in seeking dismissal. Because all such orders are void ab initio, they cannot support dismissal in this Court. Disqualification is a structural defect, not an evidentiary one. A judge must sua sponte (of one's own accord) to recuse himself when a disqualification ground exists. Judges cannot wait for litigants to discover the conflict. See Tex. R. Civ. P. 18b, Canon 3B(1). B. GLO Cannot Seek Dismissal Because It Has Not Re-Joined the Issue and Remains in Procedural Default Appellant filed her Second Amended Petition on August 12, 2025, adding new allegations including retaliation, cronyism, blacklisting, data-breach nondisclosure, anti-discrimination training nondisclosure, and contract- management deficiencies. Under Tex. R. Civ. P. 62–65, an amended pleading that alleges new matters requires a new answer. GLO never filed any answer to this operative petition. Failure to answer renders a party in default, and all allegations in the amended petition are deemed admitted. See Stoner v. Thompson, 578 S.W.2d 679, 682 (Tex. 1979); Paramount Pipe & Supply Co. v. Muhr, 749 S.W.2d 491, 494 (Tex. 1988). A defaulting party may not request affirmative relief, challenge the merits, or move for dismissal until it has properly answered and rejoined issue. Stoner, 578 S.W.2d at 682. GLO's continuing refusal to answer strips it of standing to seek 4 dismissal of Appellant's claims. Its Motion to Dismiss is procedurally improper on this ground alone. C. Appellant's Earlier Email Cannot Constitute a Knowing Waiver Under Texas Law GLO attempts to rely on an informal email sent early in the appellate process in which Appellant expressed no opposition to dismissal. However, this argument fails for several reasons. First, waiver of a fundamental right cannot occur where the proceedings were tainted by structural judicial errors. The United States Supreme Court has held that structural defects—such as judicial bias or disqualification—“defy harmless-error analysis” and are not subject to waiver. Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868, 886–87 (2009). Texas courts follows the same rule: a party cannot consent to or ratify proceedings conducted by a disqualified judge. Buckholts ISD v. Glaser, 632 S.W.2d 146, 148 (Tex. 1982). Second, conference emails do not constitute a binding waiver, stipulation, or Rule 11 agreement. A valid waiver must be intentional, knowing, and based on full knowledge of the relevant facts. Appellant's earlier email stating she did not oppose dismissal cannot constitute a waiver because it was sent before she discovered the full extent of Judge Liu's conflict of interest and structural disqualification. Throughout the litigation, Appellant consistently raised concerns that Judge Liu was prejudging her case, displaying favoritism toward GLO, and disregarding her motions for default, sanctions, and protection. At the time, 5 Appellant did not yet understand the legal significance of these irregularities because she had not yet connected them to the evidence in her possession—specifically, documents revealing Judge Liu's prior representation of GLO in matters substantially related to the present dispute. It was only during her preparation of the mandamus record that Appellant recognized the full implications: that the judge who issued all adverse rulings was legally disqualified ab initio under Tex. R. Civ. P. 18b(a)(1)(B). Because her “non-opposition” email (October 24, 2025) predates this discovery, Appellant lacked the essential factual knowledge required to intentionally waive a structural constitutional right. The law is clear: no waiver is possible where a party is unaware of the foundational facts giving rise to the right at issue, particularly in cases involving judicial disqualification or structural bias. Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868, 886–87 (2009) (due-process violations arising from judicial conflict cannot be waived); Buckholts I.S.D. v. Glaser, 632 S.W.2d 146, 148 (Tex. 1982) (disqualification cannot be waived). Accordingly, GLO cannot rely on the email as a knowing or voluntary waiver, and it provides no basis for dismissal.

D. Dismissal Would Improperly Reward Procedural Misconduct and Deprive Appellant of Meaningful Review GLO's “Motion to Dismiss” essentially asks this Court to affirm and adopt rulings entered by a judge who lacked legal authority to act and to ignore GLO's 6 procedural default. Texas appellate courts refuse to permit litigants to benefit from the consequences of judicial disqualification or procedural manipulation. In, In re Columbia Med. Ctr. of Las Colinas, Subsidiary, L.P., 290 S.W.3d 204, 213 (Tex. 2009), the Supreme Court of Texas emphasized that due process prohibits judicial actions that undermine public confidence in the fairness and integrity of the proceedings. Dismissing the appeal under these circumstances—where the record is structurally compromised and where the Real Party in Interest has never answered—would violate Appellant’s rights under Tex. Const. art. I §§ 13 and 19 and contradict fundamental principles of appellate review.

III. CONCLUSION

Since the trial court’s orders are void due to Judge Liu’s disqualification and recusal, GLO remains in procedural default because no legally valid waiver exists, and because dismissal would reward misconduct and deprive Appellant of her statutory and constitutional rights. GLO’s Motion to Dismiss must be denied.

PRAYER

For these reasons, Appellant respectfully asks this Court to:

1. DENY the General Land Office’s Motion to Dismiss;
2. Strike and disregard any reliance on orders issued by the disqualified trial judge;
3. Recognize the Honorable Judge Cory R. Liu’s recusal;
- 7
4. Recognize GLO’s continued procedural default for failure to answer the operative petition; and
5. Grant all further relief to which Appellant is justly entitled.

PROPOSED ORDER

CAUSE NO.: 15-25-00217-CV (Transferred from the Third Court of Appeals)

IN THE FIFTEENTH COURT OF APPEALS

AUSTIN, TEXAS

CEDRIC M. SCOTT, PhD,

Appellant, Pro Se v.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS,

Appellee On Appeal from the 250th Judicial District Court Travis County, Texas Trial Court Cause No. D-1-GN-25-000006

PROPOSED ORDER GRANTING APPELLANT'S MOTION TO STRIKE
GENERAL LAND OFFICE'S MOTION TO DISMISS

On this day, the Court considered Appellant's Motion to Strike GLO's Motion to Dismiss. Having reviewed the Motion, the response (if any), the record before this Court, and the applicable law, the Court finds that:

1. All trial-court rulings relied upon by the General Land Office were issued by a constitutionally and statutorily disqualified judge, rendering such rulings void ab initio under In re Union Pac. Res. Co., 969 S.W.2d 427 (Tex. 1998) and In re City of Lubbock, 624 S.W.3d 506 (Tex. 2021).
2. The General Land Office never answered Appellant's live Second Amended Petition filed August 12, 2025, which added new allegations including 10 cronyism, blacklisting, conflicts of interest, systemic contract-management deficiencies, data-breach nondisclosure, and discrimination-training failures.
3. Under Tex. R. Civ. P. 62–65 and Stoner v. Thompson, 578 S.W.2d 679 (Tex. 1979), a party that fails to answer an amended petition containing new claims remains in procedural default and may not seek affirmative relief, including dismissal.
4. GLO's attempt to seek dismissal while in default, and after having benefitted from void rulings of a disqualified judge, is procedurally improper and cannot cure structural error by answering the petition belatedly. Appellant's prior email indicating she did "not oppose dismissal" was sent before she recognized the full implications that Judge Liu who issued all adverse rulings was legally disqualified under Tex. R. Civ. P. 18b(a)(1)(B) and therefore cannot constitute waiver because structural judicial error is not waivable. Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868 (2009); Buckholts I.S.D. v. Glaser, 632 S.W.2d 146 (Tex. 1982). Accordingly, the Court finds the Motion to Strike should be GRANTED. IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that:

1. Appellant's Motion to Strike the General Land Office's Motion to Dismiss is GRANTED. 11
2. The General Land Office's Motion to Dismiss is hereby STRICKEN in its entirety and shall not be considered by this Court.
3. The General Land Office remains in procedural default until it properly answers the live Second Amended Petition in the trial court after assignment to a lawful, non-conflicted judge.
4. The Court expressly finds that answering the petition at this stage does not cure structural judicial error or retroactively validate void orders issued by a disqualified judge.
5. The appeal shall proceed in the normal course.
