QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the complaint stated a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against the owners and private restaurant based on alleged employment discrimination and harassment.
2. Whether amendment should be permitted when the alleged defendants were private parties and the complaint could not establish state action.

HOLDINGS

1. The complaint failed to state a claim under § 1983 because Cabrera did not allege, and could not allege on the pleaded facts, that the private defendants acted under color of state law.
2. Leave to amend was properly denied because amendment would be futile.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Section 1983 provides judicial remedies to a claimant who can prove that a person acting under color of state law committed an act that deprived the claimant of some right, privilege, or immunity protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States.” (Analysis)

“A court is required to dismiss a complaint (or any portion thereof) if it is “(1) is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted; or (2) seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief.”” (Footnote 1)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Cabrera, who was detained at the Pasco County Detention Center, alleged that a kitchen manager at Nikos New York Style Diner harassed and discriminated against him by using racial and profane insults. He asserted that he complained to owners Moe and Maria, but they took no action, and that he quit because of the embarrassment and humiliation. He claimed no physical injuries but sought compensation for lost wages.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Cabrera initiated the action against private individuals and a private restaurant, alleging employment-related harassment, discrimination, and First Amendment violations. On screening, the district court concluded that the defendants were not state actors and that amendment would be futile, dismissed the complaint with prejudice, terminated pending motions, and closed the case.

DISPOSITION

dismissed
