QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the appeal should be dismissed for want of prosecution when the clerk's record was not filed because appellants failed to pay or arrange payment of the clerk's fee and failed to respond to the appellate court's notice.

HOLDINGS

1. An appellate court may dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution when the trial-court clerk fails to file the clerk's record because the appellant failed to pay or arrange payment of the clerk's preparation fee, unless the appellant was entitled to proceed without payment of costs. Because appellants did not pay or arrange payment and did not establish entitlement to proceed without costs, dismissal was proper.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“If a trial-court clerk fails to file the clerk’s record due to an appellant’s failure to pay or make arrangements to pay for the clerk’s fee for preparing the record, the appellate court may dismiss the appeal for want of prosecution unless the appellant was entitled to proceed without payment of costs.” (at 2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The clerk's record was due in the court of appeals on March 20, 2026, but the trial clerk did not file it because appellants had failed to pay or arrange payment of the clerk's preparation fee. The appellate court notified appellants, requested arrangements for the record and a status report by March 30, 2026, and warned that noncompliance could result in dismissal. Appellants neither responded nor established that they were entitled to proceed without payment of costs.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The appeal came from the 423rd District Court of Bastrop County. The clerk's record was not filed by the due date because appellants had not paid or arranged to pay the trial clerk's preparation fee; after receiving notice and a deadline to submit a status report, appellants did not respond, and the court dismissed the appeal.
