

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Paul Kitaj, et al. v. Tammy Van Handel, et al.

Kitaj · No. CV-22-00463-TUC-JCH · Decided January 9, 2026

SUMMARY

The United States District Court for the District of Arizona grants defendants’ motions to exceed the page limitation for their summary judgment motion and statement of facts and to physically file non-electronic exhibits. The court grants in part and denies in part the motion to seal, ordering certain juvenile court and Department of Child Safety records sealed while requiring redactions to other exhibits. The order also accepts the motion for summary judgment and statement of facts as filed and requires the parties to confer and file stipulated redacted copies of specified exhibits.

WRITING FOR THE COURT	John C. Hinderaker
JURISDICTION	United States District Court for the District of Arizona
DECIDED	January 9, 2026
DOCKET	CV-22-00463-TUC-JCH
DISPOSITION	other
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Order resolving defendants' motion to exceed the page limitation for their motion for summary judgment and statement of facts, motion to file exhibits under seal, and motion to allow physical filing of non-electronic exhibits in a pending civil rights action.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	Motions to seal exhibits attached to a dispositive motion are evaluated under the compelling-reasons standard, requiring the court to articulate a factual basis and balance the public's interest in access against the interests supporting secrecy.
PRECEDENTIAL VALUE	Unknown

TOPICS

- civil procedure
- summary judgment
- public records

PRACTICE AREAS

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether defendants established compelling reasons to seal juvenile dependency and Department of Child Safety records attached to a motion for summary judgment.
2. Whether documents primarily concerning plaintiffs should be sealed in their entirety or instead filed with redactions protecting third-party identifying information.
3. Whether defendants should be permitted to exceed the page limitation for their summary-judgment motion and statement of facts and to file non-electronic exhibits physically.

HOLDINGS

1. A party seeking to seal materials attached to a dispositive motion must satisfy the compelling-reasons standard, even when the materials were previously subject to a protective order or filed under seal.
2. The court granted the motion to seal juvenile dependency records and Department of Child Safety records that primarily concerned minors and other persons subject to child-protective investigations because Arizona confidentiality laws and the sensitive identifying information contained in the records supplied compelling reasons for sealing.
3. The court denied sealing for exhibits primarily concerning plaintiffs because plaintiffs had waived their own confidentiality, but ordered the parties to file stipulated redacted copies protecting identifying information of minors and other persons subject to DCS investigations.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“Under this stringent standard, a court may seal records only when it finds a compelling reason and articulates the factual basis for its ruling, without relying on hypothesis or conjecture. The court must then conscientiously balance the competing interests of the public and the party who seeks to keep certain judicial records secret.” (2-3)

“Thus, there is compelling reason to seal DCS records where redactions are insufficient to protect the confidentiality of DCS information concerning persons other than Plaintiffs.” (5)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The exhibits defendants sought to file with their summary-judgment motion included juvenile dependency proceeding records and Department of Child Safety records containing identifying and sensitive information concerning minors, their mother, maternal grandmother, and other persons involved in child-protective investigations. Some exhibits primarily concerned plaintiffs, who had waived their own confidentiality, while other exhibits contained information about third parties whose confidentiality remained protected under Arizona law. Defendants also sought to file video recordings and other non-electronic exhibits physically.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Plaintiffs brought a federal civil rights action against defendants. While defendants' motion for summary judgment was pending, defendants sought additional pages, permission to file exhibits under seal, and permission to file video recordings and other non-electronic exhibits physically. Plaintiffs opposed the sealing motion. The court granted the page-limit and physical-filing motions and granted the sealing motion in part while requiring redactions for other materials.

1 WO 2 3 4 5
6 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
7 FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

8 9 Paul Kitaj, et al., No. CV-22-00463-TUC-JCH 10 Plaintiffs, ORDER 11 v. 12 Tammy Van
Handel, et al., 13 Defendants. 14 15 Before the Court is Defendants’ Motion to Exceed Page Limitation for Motion for 16 Summary Judgment and Statement of Facts (Doc. 214), Motion to File Exhibits Under Seal 17 (Doc. 217), and Motion to Allow for Physical Filing of Non-Electronic Exhibits (Doc. 18 218). Plaintiffs oppose Defendants’ Motion to File Exhibits Under

Seal (Doc. 220). 19 The Court will grant Defendants' Motion to Exceed Page Limitation for Motion for 20 Summary Judgment and Statement of Facts (Doc. 214) and Motion to Allow for Physical 21 Filing of Non-Electronic Exhibits (Doc. 218). The Court will grant in part and deny in part 22 Defendants' Motion to File Exhibits Under Seal (Doc. 217). 23 I. Motion to Seal 24 Defendants request the Court seal exhibits to their Motion for Summary Judgment 25 because "[t]he exhibits contain information that is protected including the full name of the 26 minor party, full names of non-party minors, addresses, personal phone numbers, medical 27 records, and other sensitive information regarding the minor party and the parties regarding 28 the underlying dependency matter." (Doc. 217 at 2.) Defendants argue that Arizona state 1 laws, A.R.S. § 41-1959(A) and A.R.S. § 8-208(F), "protect the confidentiality of records 2 in child-protective cases provide compelling reasons to grant a motion to seal in a related 3 case brought in federal court." (Id. at 3.) 4 Plaintiffs oppose Defendants' Motion, arguing that the fundamental rights 5 implicated in this case outweigh any potential reason for sealing the record and that 6 Defendants have not met their burdens under Local Rule of Civil Procedure ("LRCiv") 7 5.6(b) or applicable federal caselaw. (Doc. 220 at 1–2, 6–7.) Further, Defendants argue 8 certain documents are already in the public domain and are not covered by any state 9 confidentiality provision. (Id. at 6.) Finally, Plaintiffs argue that any potential privacy 10 concerns can be adequately addressed by redacting specific information. (Doc. 220 at 6–7.) 11 a. Applicable Law 12 There is a "general right to inspect and copy public records and documents, 13 including judicial records and documents." Nixon v. Warner Commc'ns, Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 14 597 (1978). While this right is not absolute, the Ninth Circuit "start[s] with a strong 15 presumption in favor of access to court records." Ctr. for Auto Safety v. Chrysler Grp., 16 LLC, 809 F.3d 1092, 1096 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 17 331 F.3d 1122, 1135 (9th Cir.2003)). To overcome this presumption, a party seeking to 18 seal materials attached to a dispositive motion, such as a motion for summary judgment, 19 must meet the "compelling reasons" standard: 20 Under this stringent standard, a court may seal records only when it finds a compelling reason and articulates the factual basis for its ruling, without 21 relying on hypothesis or conjecture. The court must then conscientiously 22 balance the competing interests of the public and the party who seeks to keep certain judicial records secret. What constitutes a "compelling reason" is best 23 left to the sound discretion of the trial court.

24 Id. at 1096–98 (cleaned up) (citing Kamakana v. City & Cnty. of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 25 1178–79 (9th Cir. 2006) and Nixon, 447 F.3d at 435 U.S. at 599). "In general, 'compelling 26 reasons' sufficient to . . . justify sealing court records exist when such 'court files 27 might . . . become a vehicle for improper purposes,' such as the use of records to gratify 28 private spite, promote public scandal, circulate libelous statements, or release trade 1 secrets." Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1179 (quoting Nixon, 435 U.S. at 597 & n.7). "The mere 2 fact that the production of records may lead to a litigant's embarrassment, incrimination, 3 or exposure to further litigation will not, without more, compel the court to seal its records." 4 Id. 5 A party must satisfy the compelling reasons standard even if the motion, or its 6 attachments, were previously filed under seal or protective order. Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1136 7 (“[T]he presumption of access is not rebutted where . . . documents subject to a protective 8 order are filed under seal as attachments to a dispositive motion.”). Further, the policy of 9 promoting access to public documents dictates that only that information for which there 10 is a compelling reason to seal should actually be sealed. Likewise, LRCiv 5.6(b) requires 11 “[a]ny motion or stipulation to file a document under seal must set forth a clear statement 12 of the facts and legal authority justifying the filing of the document under seal.” 13 Accordingly, to the extent that a party wishes to seal an entire document, rather than 14 redacting certain secret information from that document, the party must provide compelling 15 reasons to seal all the information in that document. See Kamakana, 447 at 1183. 16 Otherwise, the party must only seek to redact that information that there is a compelling 17 reason to seal. 18 b. Analysis 19 Defendants have articulated compelling reasons to seal juvenile court documents 20 and DCS records that primarily pertain to others besides Plaintiffs because these documents 21 are protected under Arizona state law. See Demaree v. Pederson, 887 F.3d 870, 885 (9th

22 Cir. 2018) (finding district court properly sealed documents in compliance with Arizona 23 state law). “Although state laws keeping child-protective case records and proceedings 24 private do not govern civil rights cases in federal court, permitting parties ‘to import 25 confidential documents into federal court and thereby make them public would seriously 26 undermine the state’s policy.’” Ingram v. Mouser, No. 1:19-CV-00308-DCN, 2023 WL 27 5017011, at *2 (D. Idaho Aug. 7, 2023) (quoting Tower v. Leslie-Brown, 167 F. Supp. 2d 28 399, 405 (D. Me. 2001)). “Accordingly, such state laws provide compelling reasons to 1 grant a motion to seal in a related case brought in federal court.” Id. (citing T.T. v. Cnty. of 2 San Diego, 2020 WL 6118781, at *1 (S.D. Cal. Oct. 16, 2020)) see Crockford v. Clark 3 Cnty. Dep’t of Fam. Servs., No. 2:25-CV-00917-JAD-MDC, 2025 WL 3251427, at *5 (D. 4 Nev. Nov. 21, 2025) (State law “requirements can provide compelling reasons to consider 5 whether certain documents should be sealed.”). 6 First, Arizona law protects dependency proceeding records: “Except as otherwise 7 provided by law, the records of . . . dependency proceeding[s] shall not be open to public 8 inspection.” A.R.S. § 8-208(F). Exhibits 5, 8, 14, 16, 35, 36, 43, 46–53, and 63 are 9 dependency proceeding records. These exhibits pertain to a minor, with some including the 10 name of the minor, his age, identifying information about his mother, and/or identifying 11 information about his maternal grandmother. Given Arizona state law, that other district 12 courts have lodged under seal the very type of documents at issue here, and the confidential 13 nature of the records, the Court finds compelling reason to seal these exhibits. See, e.g., 14 Olivares v. Cnty. of Stanislaus, No. 2:22-CV-00753-DC-CSK, 2025 WL 3130873, at *2 15 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 7, 2025) (“Courts have found that maintaining the confidentiality of 16 juvenile court records . . . [is a] compelling reason[] to file such documents under seal.”); 17 Meyer v. Cnty. of San Diego, No. 3:21-CV-00341-LL-BLM, 2022 WL 395967, at *8 (S.D. 18 Cal. Feb. 8, 2022) (sealing juvenile court records). 19 Second, Arizona law provides that DCS records are confidential: “Department 20 records and files that contain information related to investigations conducted by child 21 protective services or the department of child safety are confidential. The department shall 22 release this information only as prescribed by [A.R.S.] § 8-807.” A.R.S. § 41-1959(A). As 23 pertinent here, § 8-807 provides access to DCS information to a court or a person who is 24 the subject of the DCS information. “A person may authorize the release of DCS 25 information about the person but may not waive the confidentiality of DCS information 26 concerning any other person.” § 8-807(Q). Otherwise, those who receive “DCS 27 information shall maintain the confidentiality of the information and shall not further 28 disclose the information unless the disclosure is authorized by law or a court order.” 1 § 8-807(U). Thus, there is compelling reason to seal DCS records where redactions are 2 insufficient to protect the confidentiality of DCS information concerning persons other than 3 Plaintiffs.

4 Exhibits 2, 3, 4, 25, 29, 30, and 57 are DCS records pertaining primarily to minors 5 and other persons subject to DCS investigations. The documents are riddled with 6 identifying information about the minor, his mother, and/or his maternal grandmother and 7 redactions would not suffice to protect the identity of these individuals or the privacy of 8 the minor. The Court finds compelling reasons to seal these documents to comply with 9 Arizona state law, Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.2(a), and L.R.Civ. 5.6, which are not outweighed by 10 the public’s interest in free access to information related to the judicial process. See, e.g., 11 Miles v. City of Hartford, No. 3:08 CV 307 (MRK), 2009 WL 10717573, at *1 (D. Conn.

12 June 17, 2009) (finding compelling reasons to seal DCS records that were confidential 13 under Connecticut state law); Fratello v. Wilde, No. 2:25-CV-01606-APG-EJY, 2025 WL 14 3707565, at *6 (D. Nev. Dec. 19, 2025) (same under Nevada state law). 15 Defendants also seek to seal Exhibits 11, 13, 15, 17–19, 22–24, 32, 37, 39, 42, 45, 16 56, and 62. These documents pertain primarily to Plaintiffs, who have waived their 17 confidentiality. See § 8-807(Q) (see generally Doc. 220). The Court does not find 18 compelling reason to seal these documents. However, the Court will order redactions of 19 identifying information of other persons subject to DCS investigations to abide by Arizona 20 law and Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.2(a) and L.R.Civ. 5.6, including names of minors, the mother, 21 and relatives, or other identifying information such as phone numbers or addresses. 22 IV. Order 23 IT IS ORDERED: 24 (1) Granting Defendants’ Motion to Exceed Page Limitation for Motion for 25 Summary Judgment and Statement of Facts (Doc. 214) and Motion to Allow for 26 Physical Filing of Non-Electronic Exhibits (Doc. 218). 27 (2) Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment (Doc. 215) and Statement of Facts 28 (Doc. 216) are accepted as filed. 1 (3) Defendants Tammy Van Handel and Kimberly Hartwell have leave of the Court 2 to file a physical copy of video recordings in this case and shall deliver a copy 3 of the videos on a flash drive to the Clerk of the Court. 4 (4) Granting in part and denying in part Defendants’ Motion to File Exhibits 5 Under Seal (Doc. 217). 6 (5) Exhibits 2—5, 8, 14, 16, 25, 29, 30, 35, 36, 43, 46–53, 57, and 63 to Defendants’ 7 Motion for Summary Judgment shall be filed separately from the Motion and 8 SEALED pursuant to L.R.Civ. 5.6. 9 (6) The Parties must confer and refile stipulated redacted copies, as instructed 10 herein, of Exhibits 11, 13, 15, 17-19, 22—24, 32, 37, 39, 42, 45, 56, and 62 within 11 20 days of the date this Order is filed. 12 Dated this 6th day of January, 2026. 13 14 f 4) 16 // John C.
