New York criminal charging and Superior Court Informations

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether disorderly conduct was properly included in the Superior Court Information as a joinable lesser non-inclusory offense alongside assault in the second degree charged in the felony complaint.
2. Whether defendant's subsequent guilty plea under indictment No. 73093/23 should be vacated conditionally if the conviction under SCI No. 70645/23 were reversed.
3. Whether the two Supreme Court judgments should be affirmed.

HOLDINGS

1. Disorderly conduct was properly included in the Superior Court Information as a joinable lesser non-inclusory offense because it and assault in the second degree were based on the same act or criminal transaction, and disorderly conduct was neither a higher-grade offense than an offense in the felony complaint nor an offense containing an additional aggravating element compared with second-degree assault.
2. The challenge to defendant's subsequent guilty plea was moot because the court affirmed the prior conviction on which the requested conditional relief depended.

KEY QUOTATIONS

"The charge of disorderly conduct was properly included in the Superior Court Information as a joinable lesser non-inclusory offense, alongside the triggering offense of assault in the second degree, which was charged in the felony complaint" ([*1])

"Both charges were "based upon the same act or upon the same criminal transaction"" ([*1])

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The felony complaint alleged that on March 8, 2022, while on a subway, defendant struck a person about the head and face with a cane, causing bruising, swelling, redness, and substantial pain. The Superior Court Information charged assault in the second degree and disorderly conduct based on that alleged criminal act. Defendant also later pleaded guilty to assault in the third degree under a separate indictment.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The first judgment was rendered January 18, 2024, and amended April 10, 2024, after plea and sentencing proceedings in Supreme Court, New York County. The second judgment was rendered May 7, 2024, following defendant's guilty plea. The Appellate Division unanimously affirmed both judgments and held that defendant's contingent challenge to the second guilty plea was moot because the first conviction was affirmed.

DISPOSITION

affirmed
