

APPELLATE DIVISION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, THIRD DEPARTMENT

Stephen Keller v. Cheryl Keller

Keller, 2026 NY Slip Op 00952 (Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York Third Department 2026) · No. CV-24-1617 · Decided February 19, 2026

SUMMARY

The Appellate Division, Third Department, held that a former spouse could seek civil contempt under Domestic Relations Law § 245 and Judiciary Law § 756 without first exhausting other enforcement remedies. The court found clear and convincing evidence that the husband knowingly failed to pay a contempt fine representing the wife's equity in the marital home, but remitted for determination of the husband's inability-to-pay defense and appropriate penalties and purge conditions.

CASE DETAILS

COURT	Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, Third Department
WRITING FOR THE COURT	Corcoran, J.; Garry, P.J.; Clark, J.; Pritzker, J.; Powers, J.
JURISDICTION	New York Appellate Division, Third Department
DECIDED	February 19, 2026
DOCKET	CV-24-1617
DISPOSITION	reversed_and_remanded
PROCEDURAL POSTURE	Defendant appealed from an order of Supreme Court, Schoharie County, that partially denied her motion to hold plaintiff in civil contempt for failing to pay a contempt fine and comply with obligations arising from the parties' divorce judgment.
STANDARD OF REVIEW	A determination whether to hold a party in civil contempt is reviewed for abuse of discretion.
PRECEDENTIAL VALUE	Published
PARTIES	Cheryl Keller v. Stephen Keller

TOPICS

- contempt
- family law procedure
- divorce
- remedies
- appellate procedure

PRACTICE AREAS

Family law

Civil procedure

Contempt

Appellate procedure

Remedies

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the wife was required to exhaust other enforcement remedies or establish that they were inadequate before seeking civil contempt under Judiciary Law § 756.
2. Whether the record established the elements of civil contempt for the husband's failure to pay the $48,828.71 fine.
3. Whether the matter should be remitted for determination of the husband's asserted inability to pay and for consideration of appropriate contempt penalties and purge conditions.

HOLDINGS

1. A spouse seeking contempt under Judiciary Law § 756 for nonpayment of a sum required by a divorce judgment or order need not first pursue other enforcement remedies or demonstrate that no other adequate remedy at law exists.
2. The wife established by clear and convincing evidence that the husband had actual knowledge of a lawful, clear, and unequivocal order, disobeyed it by failing to pay the fine, and prejudiced her rights; a finding of civil contempt was therefore justified.
3. The record was insufficient to determine whether the husband established an inability to pay the fine, so the matter had to be remitted for further proceedings addressing that defense and appropriate penalties and purge conditions.

KEY QUOTATIONS

*"Where a spouse defaults in paying any sum required by a divorce judgment or order, the aggrieved spouse may move under Judiciary Law § 756 for an order to punish by fine or commitment without first applying "for enforcement [of the monetary obligation] by any other means"" (1)

*"To sustain a finding of civil contempt for violation of the terms of an order, the movant must "establish by clear and convincing evidence that the party charged with contempt had actual knowledge of a lawful, clear and unequivocal order, that the charged party . . . disobeyed that order, and that this conduct prejudiced the opposing party's rights"" (2)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The parties' 2017 divorce judgment incorporated an oral stipulation requiring the husband either to purchase the wife's interest in the marital home for $48,500 or list the home for sale within 120 days. After the husband failed to comply, Supreme Court ordered him to list the residence and later adjudged him in civil contempt, imposing a $48,828.71 fine representing the wife's equity. The husband did not pay the fine, allowed the home to be sold at a tax foreclosure sale, and liquidated a retirement account, spending approximately $50,000 despite knowing of the payment order.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The parties were divorced in 2017 under a judgment incorporating their oral stipulation concerning the marital home. After the husband failed to comply, Supreme Court ordered further performance and, in 2021, adjudged him in civil contempt and imposed a fine of $48,828.71. The wife moved again in 2023 under Judiciary Law §§ 753 and 756, but Supreme Court denied contempt and incarceration relief after a hearing. The Third Department modified the order, held that contempt was justified on the record, and remitted for determination of the husband's inability-to-pay defense and appropriate penalties and purge conditions.

DISPOSITION

reversed_and_remanded

REMAND INSTRUCTIONS

Remit to Supreme Court for further proceedings, including a determination whether the husband established an inability-to-pay or other defense and consideration of appropriate civil contempt penalties and purge conditions.

CASES CITED

- Vicedomine v. LaRose-Vicedomine, 174 AD3d 1174, 1175 n 2 (3d Dept 2019)
- Holsberger v. Holsberger, 154 AD3d 1208, 1210 n 1 (3d Dept 2017)
- Matter of Michelle L. v. Steven M., 227 AD3d 1159, 1163-1164 (3d Dept 2024)
- Matter of Brett J. v. Julie K., 209 AD3d 1141, 1145 (3d Dept 2022)
- DeCrescenzo v. Suslak, 238 AD3d 1406, 1411 (3d Dept 2025), lv dismissed 44 NY3d 1004 (2025)
- Seale v. Seale, 154 AD3d 1190, 1192 (3d Dept 2017)
- El-Dehdan v. El-Dehdan, 26 NY3d 19, 36 (2015)
- Carver Fed. Sav. Bank v. Shaker Gardens, Inc., 167 AD3d 1337, 1343-1344 (3d Dept 2018)
- Barlette v. Barlette, 95 AD3d 1624, 1625 (3d Dept 2012)