QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the appellate record was sufficient for the court of appeals to evaluate the trial court's certification that the case was a plea-bargain case and that the defendant had no right of appeal.

KEY QUOTATIONS

“is a plea-bargain case, and the defendant has NO right of appeal.” (at 1)

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The underlying criminal case was identified by the trial court as a plea-bargain case. The trial court certified that Genene Jones had no right of appeal, prompting the court of appeals to require the record relating to the plea bargain, judgment, post-judgment proceedings, notice of appeal, and certification.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The case arose from trial court cause number 2017CR5730 in the 399th Judicial District Court of Bexar County, Texas. After the trial court certified that the case was a plea-bargain case in which the defendant had no right of appeal, the Fourth Court of Appeals ordered preparation of a supplemental clerk's record to evaluate the appeal and suspended other appellate deadlines pending further order.
